(Certified Emergency Management Manager-Maine)

Program

Serving your people responsibly through

"Certification"

CEM-ME

WHY?

When you have an emergency management assignment in any level of government, industry or volunteer organization, you have a tremendous responsibility for the protection of live and property in an emergency situation.

The Program

Natural and man-made disasters destroy our communities and affect the lives of those for whom we have, as Emergency Managers, accepted a responsibility to serve. While we can't stop these disasters, we can better prepare ourselves through certification and training.

The program exists as an association that joins all levels of government within the State, along with all disaster response professionals, together in a cohesive group. This group works toward a common goal of better serving the people for whom they have a responsibility, while furthering the profession.

We wish "to guide" (DIRIGO) others toward fulfilling their desires to excel in emergency management and establish themselves as
