School Union 93 considers the intellectual, physical, social, and emotional needs of the learner. Our goal of the Gifted and Talented program is to educate the whole child through methods, programs, and material that nurture and encourage the readiness and development of each individual. Our ambition is to provide an educationally challenging environment that makes learning exciting. We are committed to - giving the best possible education opportunity to students. The worth of the learner is respected and enhanced in a climate that is positive, cooperative, orderly, and consistent. Our intent is to foster the learner's development of creativity, awareness of roles in society, and appreciation of a citizen's participation in a democracy. The education of our students is a responsibility shared by the school, parents, and community through communication and collaborative efforts that support a flexible learning environment in which students become self directed lifelong learners without the skill of inquiry and the value of education as its own reward.

Arts program philosophy:

Our philosophy of education for the gifted and talented is to ensure each identified student is provided with diverse and appropriately challenging learning experiences that aid and encourage them to meet his or her artistic potential. Screening :

Students will be screened 3 times per year with the AimsWeb Monitoring Tool in Reading and Math. Teachers of the top performing 5% of students will be given teacher nomination forms to complete. In addition, the Fountas and Pinnell Diagnostic Leveled Benchmark tool will be analyzed for students distinguished in Reading, and the Key Math Diagnostic Tool will be used for students distinguished in Math to determine more detailed strengths. For Science and Social Studies, students will be referred through teacher nominations, as well as results on the Gifted Rating Scale-Score Age (GRS-S). Students must excel in all four content areas to be identified in General Intellectual Ability.

Selection:

The tools above will be used to target the student's reasoning ability, as well as specific skills noted in Reading and Math. Once a pool of students is identified, the students will be assessed with the WISC or the Woodcock Johnson Cognitive Abilities Test.

Placement:

Test scores will be analyzed to focus on the top 5% of students and all additional nominations and mitigating factors will be considered for placement in the Gifted and Talented program.
