CPI employs approximately 40 Global Professional Instructors world-wide. Unlike other training providers, CPI elects to employ the Professional Instructors as full-time employees so that we can support ongoing development and competency-based testing within our Instructor Team.

CPI requires that each Global Professional Instructor has a minimum of a Bachelor's Degree in the following fields: education, mental health, social work, healthcare, corrections or related fields. Many of CPI's Global Professional Instructors have Master's Degrees with backgrounds in the training field as well as direct experience gained training in the related domestic and international markets.

Please find the attached biography's from Global Professional Instructors as well as The Director of Professional Development as a sampling of the staff we employ in this training position. Because a large portion of CPI's business is generated from educational field, CPI's Global Professional Instructors have a vast amount of experience working with and training educators. As you can see, many of them have direct prior experience working in educational field. CPI is willing to provide additional biography's at the request of the Maine Department of Education.
