

How to Use MARVELous Resources

<http://www.maine.gov/marvel/>

Use this web site to access full-texts of magazines, newspapers and scholarly journals in a wide variety of subject areas and academic levels. There are resources for children, encyclopedias, literary, business, and medical sources and more.

1. Enter the web site above. If you are accessing these databases from home, you will be required to enter your username and password which you create for yourself. Registration is free.
2. Click on the name of the database you wish to search. Many of the databases use the search screen shown here. Click on EBSCOHost Database Collection for an option to search several databases at once.
3. Type in your topic in the search box provided. You may limit your search to a magazine title, date and to full text, if you wish. Take note of other options such as searching for terms within the text of the article.
4. You will get a list of results. Many, but not all, of the articles will be available as full text. Click on the article title to view, print or e-mail it.
5. A handy feature is the use of the folder on the top right of the screen. This allows you to e-mail and print more than one article at a time.
6. For multiple articles, click on the "add" option next to the articles you wish to print or e-mail.

A screenshot of the EBSCOHost search interface. At the top, there's a navigation bar with "EBSCO Research Databases" logo, "Basic Search", "Advanced Search", and "Choose Databases" buttons. Below that are "Sign In to My EBSCOhost" and "Keyword", "Subjects", "Publications", "Dictionary", "Images" buttons. The search bar contains "gasoline prices" and has "Search" and "Clear" buttons. Below the search bar, it says "Searched: MasterFILE Premier for gasoline prices" and "Folder is empty." The results section shows "1 to 10 (of 2428)" and "Pages: 1 2 3 4 5". The first result is "America's Black Gold" by Debra Newbold, with "HTML Full Text" and "PDF Full Text" options. The second result is "Burst the Bubble" by Steve Forbes, with "HTML Full Text" option. A callout box on the right says "Click on your folder to proceed with printing and e-mailing options." with an arrow pointing to the "Folder is empty." message.

Click on your folder to proceed with printing and e-mailing options.

E-mail Manager

Back

Articles
Bibliographic Manager

Number of items to be e-mailed: 10

E-mail Address:

Separate each e-mail address with a semicolon.

Subject:

Comments:

Include when sending:

HTML Full Text (when available)

PDF as separate attachment (when available)

Standard Field Format

Customized Field Format

Select Fields

Note PDF option. Check this box if applicable.

In addition to Abstracts or summaries, a citation can include HTML Full Text (the complete article) and PDF (article image)

7. Some notes on PDF (Portable Document Files): You must open PDF files before you can print them. This is to your advantage since a file of this type can be much larger than you want to print or e-mail. Some can be quite lengthy, including pictures and other graphics. You can e-mail PDF files without opening them first. A PDF file should be sent as a separate attachment. Adobe Acrobat Reader software is necessary to open and view PDF files.

There is an option to “estimate the number of pages” before you print. You can print just a few of the pages if you wish.