

Guide for Public Testimony

- Public comments are important. The public can provide information about how people who live, work or recreate in the Commission's service area would be affected. This is very important as the Commission considers the impacts of the proposed rule revisions.
- You can agree with another speaker without repeating. If you want to agree with or emphasize something that has already been said, please just state that without repeating the testimony. This gives added weight to the point while saving time so that everyone has a chance to speak and we make good use of everyone's time.
- Time limit. Each speaker will be limited to three minute presentations (the Chair may amend the time allotted for individual presentations depending on the volume of speakers). This is so that everyone has a turn. You can submit additional comments in writing either at the hearing or at any time during the comment period.
