Release Considerations

The Department has initiated a review of adult and juvenile clients for placement onto Supervised Community Confinement (SCCP, for adults) and Community Reintegration (for juveniles).

SCCP

SCCP is a community-based program that allows incarcerated clients to be transferred from a DOC correctional institution to an approved residence in the community while finishing their sentence. SCCP is governed by statutory criteria and APA rule.

In order to qualify for SCCP, DOC clients must be classified as community custody, have a current release date of less than eighteen (18) months, have been discipline free for 90 days or more, have served a designated period of time within a State managed facility, and have an approved release plan for community transition. The statutory criteria can be found here: <http://legislature.maine.gov/legis/statutes/34-A/title34-Asec3036-A.html>

SCCP is a regularly used program during normal operations and requires an extensive field investigation, review and approval process; however, during this time, the Department has enhanced the efforts and resources associated with the program in response to COVID-19 creating a more efficient, stream-lined review and approval process, including additional application resources, placement investigation resources, and release planning supports.

In order to streamline and expedite this current review process, the Department has established the below parameters:

- Client's current release date must be less than one year,
- Client is not currently serving a sentence for a crime committed against a person,
- Client may not have a criminal history that includes a crime against a person, fugitive from justice, or several prior revocations of probation,
- Client must be approved as community custody by the Department's classification instrument,
- Client's placement plan must include stable housing, medical services (as needed), and treatment/programming services (as appropriate),
- Client's medical history and current medical condition(s),
- Client's history on probation and/or SCCP, including positive compliance with past supervision,
- Client's treatment and programming progress and compliance while incarcerated.

Community Reintegration

Juvenile community reintegration is a process of integrating prepared juveniles into an approved community residence/placement, following appropriate case planning and preparation while housed at Long Creek Youth Development Center.

All juveniles are eligible to be considered for placement onto community reintegration. Juvenile Services staff are considering the following factors when reviewing appropriateness for community reintegration:

- Severity of the juvenile's offense history,
- Juvenile's medical history and current medical condition(s),
- Availability and stability of the residential placement and environment,
- Length of time incarcerated,
- Progress in facility treatment and programming,
- Community and family support available in the community,
- Treatment and programming available in the community,
- Length of time left until the juvenile's maximum release date.

Juvenile community reintegration is a regularly used program during normal operations; however, during this time the Department has enhanced the efforts and resources associated with the program in response to COVID-19, conducting on-going reviews for placement and streamlining reintegration processes. The Department's goal is to identify youth to be released as soon as possible.
