PART III: SUPPLEMENTAL INFORMATION

1. Provide a more detailed description and explain the need for the goods, services or grant to supplement the response in Part I.

The Arizona LaserChron Center in the Department of Geosciences at the University of Arizona will separate zircons from whole rock samples; select, mount, grind and polish, and image zircons, and conduct U-Pb laser ablation ICP-MS analysis with the goal of obtaining ages of the zircon samples. The samples are for igneous and detrital zircon dating in Maine as part of the USGS-funded STATEMAP geologic mapping program. The Maine Geological Survey does not have the facilities to conduct this kind of specialized analysis.

2. Provide a brief justification for the selected vendor to supplement the response in Part II. Reference the RFP number, if applicable.

The Arizona LaserChron Center is one of only a few commercial labs in the U.S. that provide this kind of analytical service, is the most cited vendor of this service in academic literature, and the only one that has all steps of the method conducted in-house by full-time staff without the need to ship samples to other laboratories for one or more steps (separation or imaging) or with the need of an MGS employee to be present to assist. This vendor provides high-quality and efficient analytical services for the best price.

3. Explain how the negotiated costs or rates are fair and reasonable; or how the funding was allocated to grantee.

Staff of the Maine Geological Survey have researched the quality and efficiency of the very few other vendors that supply a similar service and have determined that the University of Arizona will provide the best service for the price per sample and in the time required by this project.

4. Describe the plan for future competition for the goods or services.

The few other commercial labs that conduct these kinds of zircon dating services may or may not improve their services over time, and the Maine Geological Survey would certainly be open to trying additional labs if the criteria are met. For now, we need a reliable, all-in-one, tried-and-true lab to meet the data quality required before the grant deadline.
