To the staff @ DEP,

I write as a resident of both Portland and Freedom. Both of these homes provide a vantage from which to examine the proposed CMP corridor, although the physical structures are relatively far from where I live and work. The CMP corridor does nothing for the state of Maine except supply a short-term infusion of revenue; this revenue stream will be more than offset by the damage done to Maine's terrain, its agricultural and recreational opportunities, and the longterm environment health of the state.

Please do not sell Maine out for destructive energy infrastructure that doesn't directly benefit the people of Maine. Rather, use your considerable expertise and commitment to Maine to push for local, renewable energy sources that sustain our environment--and the people who live and work in it.

Thank you for keeping Maine safe, beautiful, and sustainable. Stop the Corridor.
