I am sending this comment on the proposed CMP project. A project that will cause as much disruption and consequential change to a pristine wild area requires an environmental impact study prior to approval. Whatever is done to the area will not be able to be brought back to its' natural state should it not prove to be as successful as expected. Without an impact study the affect on the environment, the wildlife that is dependent upon the area, and the long range impact on all of the people and townships involved is an unknown.

I am not convinced that this proposal is the best means of accomplishing the stated goal. Maine should not be involved in the destroying its' own pristine areas without having a complete understanding of the consequences.
