The sampling plan must include laboratory analysis for total lead in soils around the bulk storage tanks and areas where leaded gasoline products were stored and distributed. The investigation must include an estimate of the volume of contaminated soils and groundwater contaminated above unrestricted use (generally residential) cleanup standards and identify areas with current or potential future surface water impacts.

(b) The removal of all oil and oil residuals from tanks, discharge control equipment, discharge confinement structures and containment systems. Address the removal of any oil cooled transformers.

(c) The decontamination or removal of all remaining containers, liners, bases and soil containing or contaminated with oil or oil residuals above unrestricted use levels (usually residential) and where contamination poses a risk of transport to water resources (groundwater and surface water);

(d) An itemized estimate of the cost to remediate the site to residential use and to prevent discharge to ground and surface water for the existing conditions at the facility site;

(e) The removal of aboveground and underground tanks and piping and tanks;

(f) A comprehensive piping survey that shows the location of all former pipes, current pipes and abandoned pipes.

(g) Provisions for a written facility closure report with the inclusion of a certification from an independent engineer that the facility closure was conducted in accordance with the approved facility closure plan and that all regulated substances have been removed or cleaned up to the satisfaction of the Department.

(h) Provisions for filing an underground piping survey with the county Registry of Deeds.

25. Attach a Natural Hazard Risk Assessment (NHRA) as required by 06-096 CMR 600, § 8(H). NHRA Guidance can be found here: Marine Oil Terminals

Exhibit 6 – Tank Upgrades and Inspections

6. "Attach a list of tanks that have been upgraded and or inspected since the issuance of your last license. Attach any documentation that indicates that the inspections were performed in accordance with the requirements found in 06-096 CMR 600, § 9(C)(2)(h)(i) and (j) if asphalt tanks."

Tank Upgrades:

PPLC has not upgraded tanks since the May 19, 2022 issuance of the current license.

Tank Inspections:

Storage tank data relevant to inspection requirements is provided in Exhibit 3.

External inspections, all tanks:

PPLC conducts regular daily and monthly external inspections on all tanks.

Internal Inspections, Interval In-Service Between Inspections:

The allowable in-service interval between internal inspections is defined at 06-096 CMR 600, § (9)(C)(2)(h), depending on the configuration of the tank. All PPLC tanks are equipped with internal bottom linings and external impressed current cathodic protection, and so qualify for either a 10-year interval per § (9)(C)(2)(h)(ii) or a 20-year interval per § (9)(C)(2)(h)(iv) as described further below. In the event that a tank is temporarily out of service or out of service, PPLC will complete the internal inspection prior to placing the tank in-service, and continues to conduct regular external inspections on the tank as noted above.

Internal Inspections, 10-year Interval Tanks:

Six PPLC tanks are not yet equipped with release prevention barriers (RPBs), and so had complied with the 10-year in-service interval between internal inspections per 06-096 CMR 600, § (9)(C)(2)(h)(ii). As of November 7, 2019, all in-service tanks require RPBs per 06-096 CMR 600, § (8)(B)(6), so these six tanks are presently temporarily out of service or out of service and will be equipped with RPBs before being returned to service, and would subsequently comply with the 20-year interval described below.

Internal Inspections, 20-year Interval Tanks:

Seventeen PPLC tanks are equipped with RPBs as indicated in Exhibit 3, and so comply with the 20-year in-service interval between internal inspections per 06-096 CMR 600, § (9)(C)(2)(h)(iv). PPLC has retrofitted twelve of these seventeen tanks with synthetic RPBs, while the other five are constructed over natural soil RPBs.

Tank inspections are performed in accordance with the latest edition of API-653 and 06-096 CMR 600, § (9)(C)(2)(i).

No. 6 fuel oil and asphalt are not currently stored at the PPLC marine oil terminal; therefore 06-096 CMR 600, § (9)(C)(2)(h)(v-viii) and § (9)(C)(2)(j) are not applicable.

No tank upgrades or internal inspections have been performed on PPLC tanks since the previous license renewal in 2022.

Exhibit 7 – Tanks Temporarily Out of Service

7. "Which tanks are temporarily out of service (12 months or longer)? Do these tank(s) meet the requirements found in 06-096 CMR 600 § 12(B)?"
☒ Yes ☐ No

PPLC presently has six tanks temporarily out of service: Tanks 9, 10, 11, 12, 21, and 26. The tanks meet the requirements of 06-096 CMR 600, § (12)(B)(1)-(6), as follows:

1. Oil has been removed from the subject tanks associated piping and transferred to PPLC's in-service system.
2. The subject tanks are not located within a 100-year floodplain, but are protected from flotation by continued operation of the existing dike drain valves to remove water and by maintaining tank shell manway(s) open for the passage of water into the tank in the event of extreme precipitation that could raise the water level in the dike to a level that could otherwise lead to tank flotation.
3. Tank openings have been secured and locked to prevent access. Piping and valves are protected against unauthorized use by locking controls and valve operators and/or by valve removal and pipe capping or blinding.
4. The subject tanks continue to be licensed under 06-096 CMR 600 and are periodically inspected to prevent damage. PPLC will perform API Std. 653 out-of-service internal inspection of the tanks prior to their return to service.
5. The subject tanks and piping may remain out of service for more than two years. Accordingly, the tanks have been cleaned and certified "gas-free", and liquid and sludges have been removed from the tanks and associated piping. The piping has been or will be displaced with nitrogen gas to render the contents inert and safe against ignition and internal corrosion.
6. The subject tanks will not be reactivated for petroleum storage without first receiving a suitability for service inspection that finds the tank suitable for its intended service in accordance with API Standard 653.

Exhibit 8 – Tanks Out of Service

8. "Which tanks are out of service (more than 10 years)?
Do these tank(s) meet the requirements found in 06-096 CMR 600 § 12(C)?"
☒ Yes ☐ No

PPLC presently has eight tanks out of service: Tanks 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 25, 27, and 28. The tanks meet the requirements of 06-096 CMR 600, § (12)(C)(1)-(5), as follows:

1. Provisions have been made for natural breathing of the tank to ensure that the tank remains gas free by keeping tank shell manway(s) and external floating roof automatic bleeder vents open to air flow.
2. Connecting piping has been disconnected and securely capped or plugged, and tank openings have been secured and locked to prevent access. Tank shell manways that are kept open for natural breathing are secured with open grating material such as chain link fence fabric locked in place over the opening.
3. The subject tanks have been marked with the date of when the tank was taken out of service, indicated as the date the tank was certified gas-free.
4. The subject tanks are not located within a 100-year floodplain, but are protected from flotation by continued operation of the existing dike drain valves to remove water and by maintaining tank shell manway(s) open for the passage of water into the tank in the event of extreme precipitation that could raise the water level in the dike to a level that could otherwise lead to tank flotation.
5. The subject tanks will not be reactivated for petroleum storage without first receiving a suitability for service inspection that finds the tank suitable for its intended service in accordance with API Standard 653.

Exhibit 9 – Containment Dikes

9. "Do the containment dikes at the terminal meet the requirements found in 06-096 CMR 600, § 8(D) for tank secondary containment?" ☒ Yes ☐ No

Existing Tanks:

All PPLC facility tanks are existing and not new, reconstructed, or relocated, therefore 06-096 CMR 600 § (8)(D) (1) & (2) are not applicable.

Capacity of Spill Containment Dikes:

The containment dikes meet the requirements of 06-096 CMR 600 § (8)(D)(3) and (7)(D)(1).

Dike Configuration:

The tank dikes were constructed and are maintained to comply with NFPA 30.

Dike Impermeability:

The containment dikes were constructed and are maintained to prevent any release of oil within the diked area from reaching a surface water body or groundwater more than 30 feet horizontally outside of the diked area within 72 hours. The conditions at PPLC facilities meet the requirements of 06-096 CMR 600 § (8)(D)(5) without the need for site assessments to be performed, as described in Exhibit 4.

Valve Access:

Dike stormwater drainage valves are located outside of the dikes and are accessible for operation during or after storm events.

Dike Stairways:

All PPLC Marine Terminal tanks are accessed by permanent stairs and gravel roadways that prevent dike wall degradation.

Exhibit 10 – Cathodic Protection for Underground Piping

10. "Attach documentation indicating that all underground piping is cathodically protected as required by 06-096 CMR 600, § 8(C)(6). The Department considers sections of above ground pipe that penetrate dike walls or run under roadways as underground piping."

Cathodic Protection of Underground Piping:

All underground steel piping at PPLC's marine oil terminal is protected from external corrosion by impressed current cathodic protection systems in accordance with NACE Standard RP0169, and by the use of external pipe coatings. The majority of PPLC's marine oil terminal piping is underground. To verify that adequate cathodic protection levels are maintained, the pipe-to-soil potentials are tested annually. In addition, PPLC has periodically conducted close interval potential surveys (CIPS) on its marine oil terminal piping as a supplement to annual pipe to soil testing.

The impressed current cathodic protection systems are included in PPLC's ongoing testing, inspection, and maintenance programs. The impressed current rectifiers are equipped with indicator lights that facilitate daily drive-by inspection for operability, providing for immediate repair in the event of a failure or power interruption.

PPLC has equipped many of its rectifiers with remote-read capability using cellular technology, allowing for viewing and logging the operating parameters from desk-top computers to monitor performance and operating trends. The remote-read rectifiers also automatically send an alert message to PPLC maintenance personnel in the event of a rectifier malfunction.

When indicated by the performance data, whether read in the field or remotely, PPLC performs maintenance and repairs to ensure continued protection effectiveness. Actions may include adjusting rectifier outputs, replacing impressed current anodes, and replacing impressed current rectifiers.

The documentation of the periodic testing of the cathodic protection systems is maintained at PPLC's facilities in South Portland and is available for Department inspection.

Exhibit 11 – Annual Testing for Underground Piping

11. "Attach documentation indicating that all underground pipes at the facility are annually tested as required by 06-096 CMR 600, § 9(C)(2)(f)."

Underground Piping Testing:

The following table summarizes testing and inspection performed by PPLC on underground piping as required by 06-096 CMR 600, § (9)(C)(2)(f).

In-line inspection (ILI) has been employed for the transfer and unloading lines. Computerized inspection tools are deployed inside the lines to analyze the pipe wall condition along the entire length of each pipeline. Conditions of interest receive follow-up inspection in the field. In this way, maintenance and repairs are implemented proactively rather than reactively. PPLC also compares subsequent ILI data sets to identify changing conditions that might indicate active corrosion or other integrity threats.

Computational pipeline monitoring (CPM) leak detection is provided for most of PPLC's marine oil terminal piping. When the piping segment is in operation, CPM automatically monitors the amount of fluid delivered into and out of the piping segment and issues an alarm if a discrepancy is detected that might indicate a leak. SCADA (Supervisory Control and Data Acquisition) also continuously monitors piping pressures including when segments are not in operation and issues an alarm in the event of a sudden unexplained drop in pressure that might indicate a leak. SCADA also continuously monitors the gauged levels in tanks connected to the piping and issues an alarm in the event of an unexplained drop in the gauged level that might indicate a leak.

The documentation of the underground piping testing is maintained at PPLC's facilities in South Portland and is available for Department inspection.

Exhibit 12 – Testing for Above Ground Piping

12. "Attach documentation that indicates that above ground piping at the facility have been tested as required by 06-096 CMR 600, § 9(C)(2)(g) unless the above ground pipes can be visually inspected 360 degrees around its entire length."

The following table summarizes testing and inspection performed by PPLC on above ground piping as required by 06-096 CMR 600, § (9)(C)(2)(g).

The piping in this table can be visually inspected 360 degrees around its entire length. Where this piping is continuous and contiguous with underground piping described in Exhibit 9, the aboveground portions generally receive the underground testing and inspection in addition to the aboveground visual inspection. For example, tank lateral piping is included in both Exhibit 9 and Exhibit 10, because the portions of each lateral that are located within the tank dike or within the manifold are aboveground while the portion passing through the tank dike and between the dike and manifold is underground.

The documentation of the testing of aboveground piping is maintained at PPLC's facilities in South Portland and is available for Department inspection.

Exhibit 13 – Truck & Tank Car Loading & Unloading

13. "What devices are used by the terminal owner/operator to meet the requirements of 06-096 CMR 600, § 8(F) truck and tank car loading and unloading?"

There are no truck or tank car loading or unloading facilities at the PPLC marine oil terminal. Therefore, 096 CMR 600, § (8)(F) is not applicable.

(This page intentionally blank)

Exhibit 14 – Contingency & Spill Control Plans

14. "Attach documentation that indicates that the terminal operator maintains an up to date Contingency Plan and Spill Control and Countermeasures Plan as required by 06-096 CMR 600, § 9(A)(25) and (27)."

As described in Exhibit 2, PPLC maintains an up to date contingency plan and spill prevention, control and countermeasures plan in the form of a single Integrated Contingency Plan (ICP). A copy of the complete ICP is available on file with the Department. PPLC's Spill Prevention Control and Countermeasures (SPCC) plan is included within the ICP on file with the Department.

PPLC's ICP has been developed to coordinate, integrate and satisfy the requirements of 06-096 CMR 600, § (9)(A)(25) and (27) as well as the requirements of other agencies having jurisdiction over PPLC facilities and operations. These include the United States Coast Guard for the marine terminal, the United States Environmental Protection Agency for the storage tank facilities, and the United States Department of Transportation - Pipeline and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration for the interstate pipeline system.

Exhibit 15 – Site Plans

15. "Attach a site plan of the facility that identifies any changes made to the following since the issuance of your last license:
    a. The location of all oil storage tanks, dikes, docks and associated pipelines.
    b. Oil water separators and associated piping, drainage ditches and discharge points.
    c. Tank truck and tank car loading and unloading areas."

There have been no additions, deletions, or relocations of any of the above noted facilities since issuance of PPLC's last renewal license.

The PPLC oil storage facilities, including storage tanks, dikes, docks, associated pipelines, and major equipment, are depicted on the figures included as Exhibit 15a –1 & 15a –2 for the pier/shore and tank farm facilities, respectively.

The PPLC site drainage facilities, including the dikes, drainage ditches, drainage piping, oil/water separator, reservoir, and discharge point, are depicted on the figures attached as Exhibit 15b-1 for the tank farm and Exhibit 15b-2 for the terminal area.

There are no truck or tank car loading or unloading facilities at the PPLC marine oil terminal; therefore, Item 15 (c) is not applicable.

Exhibit 15a-2 – Tank Farm Facilities

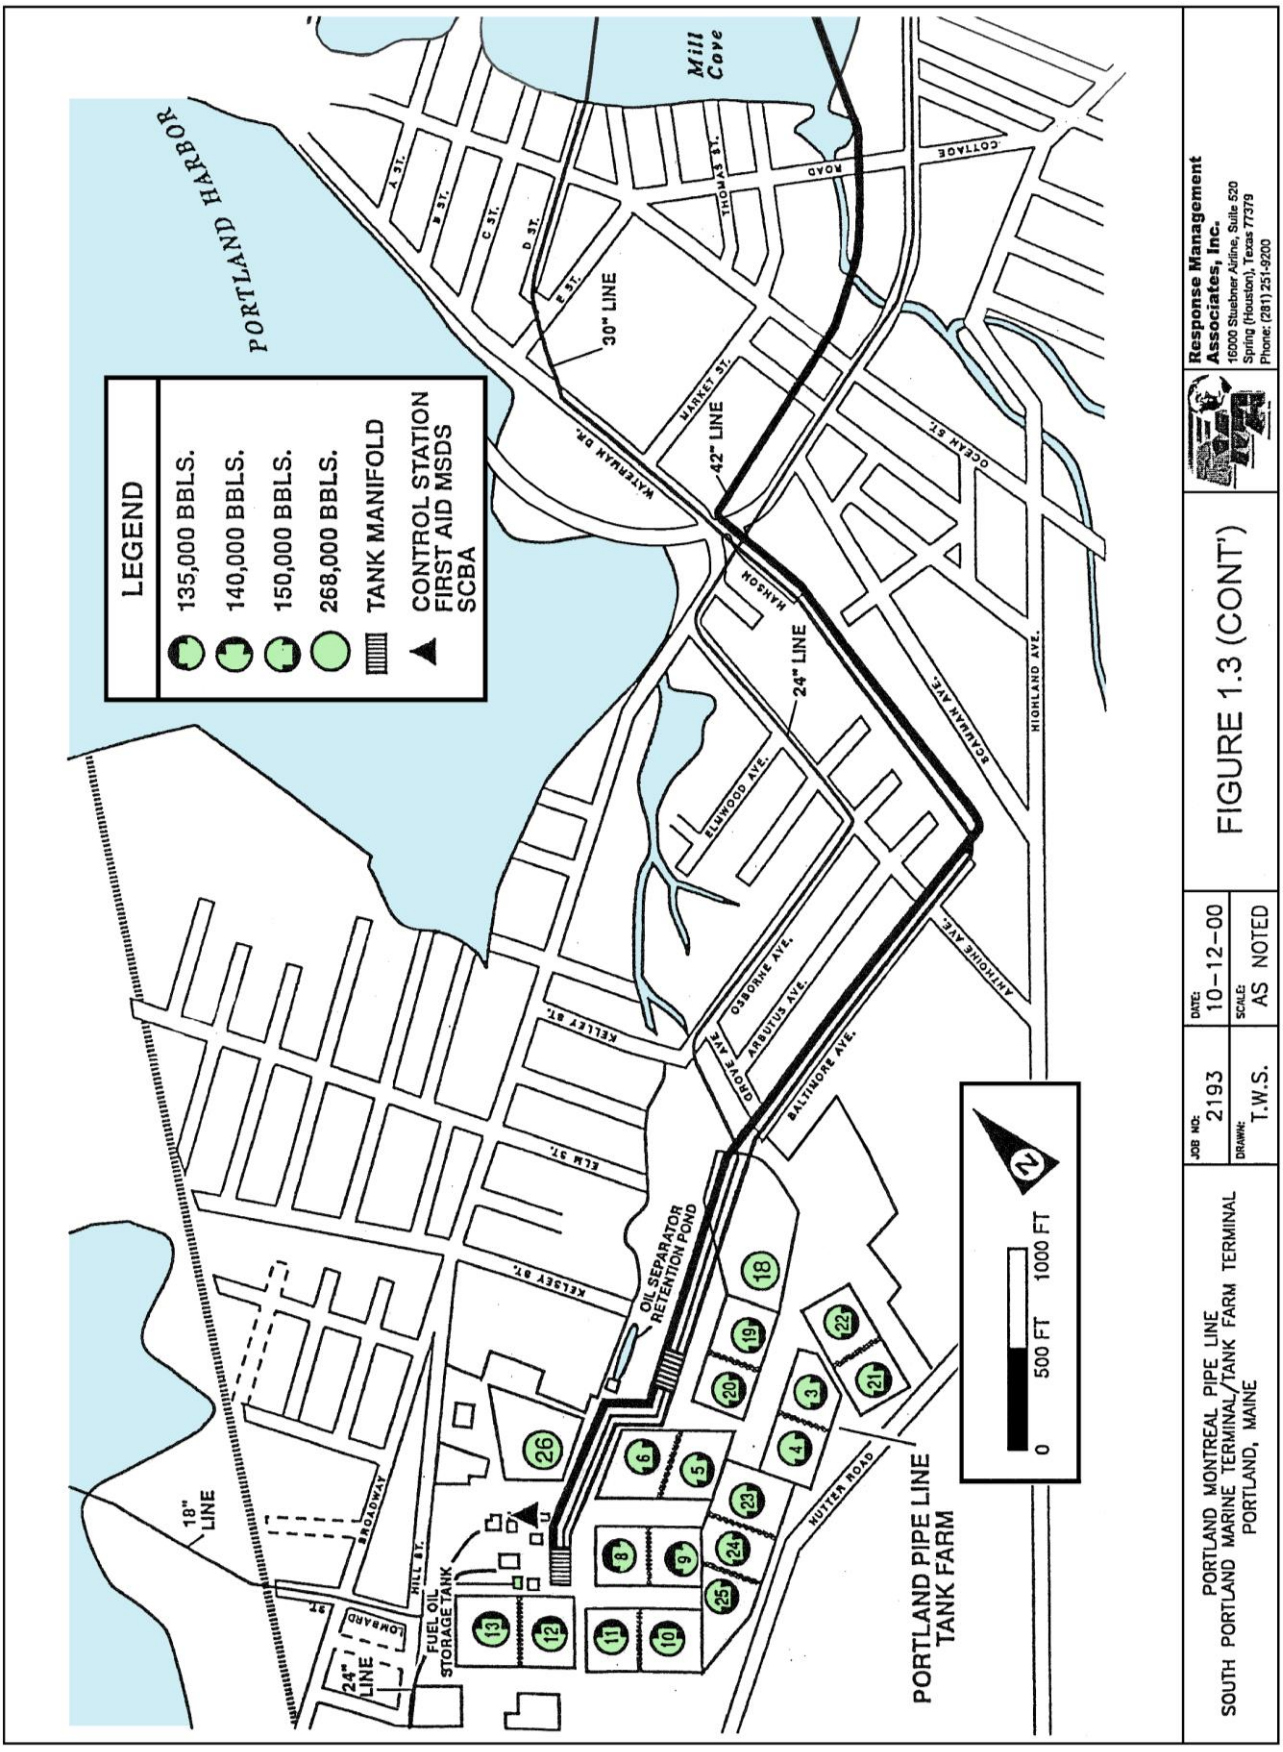

Exhibit 15b-1 – Oil/Water Separator & Discharge Facilities

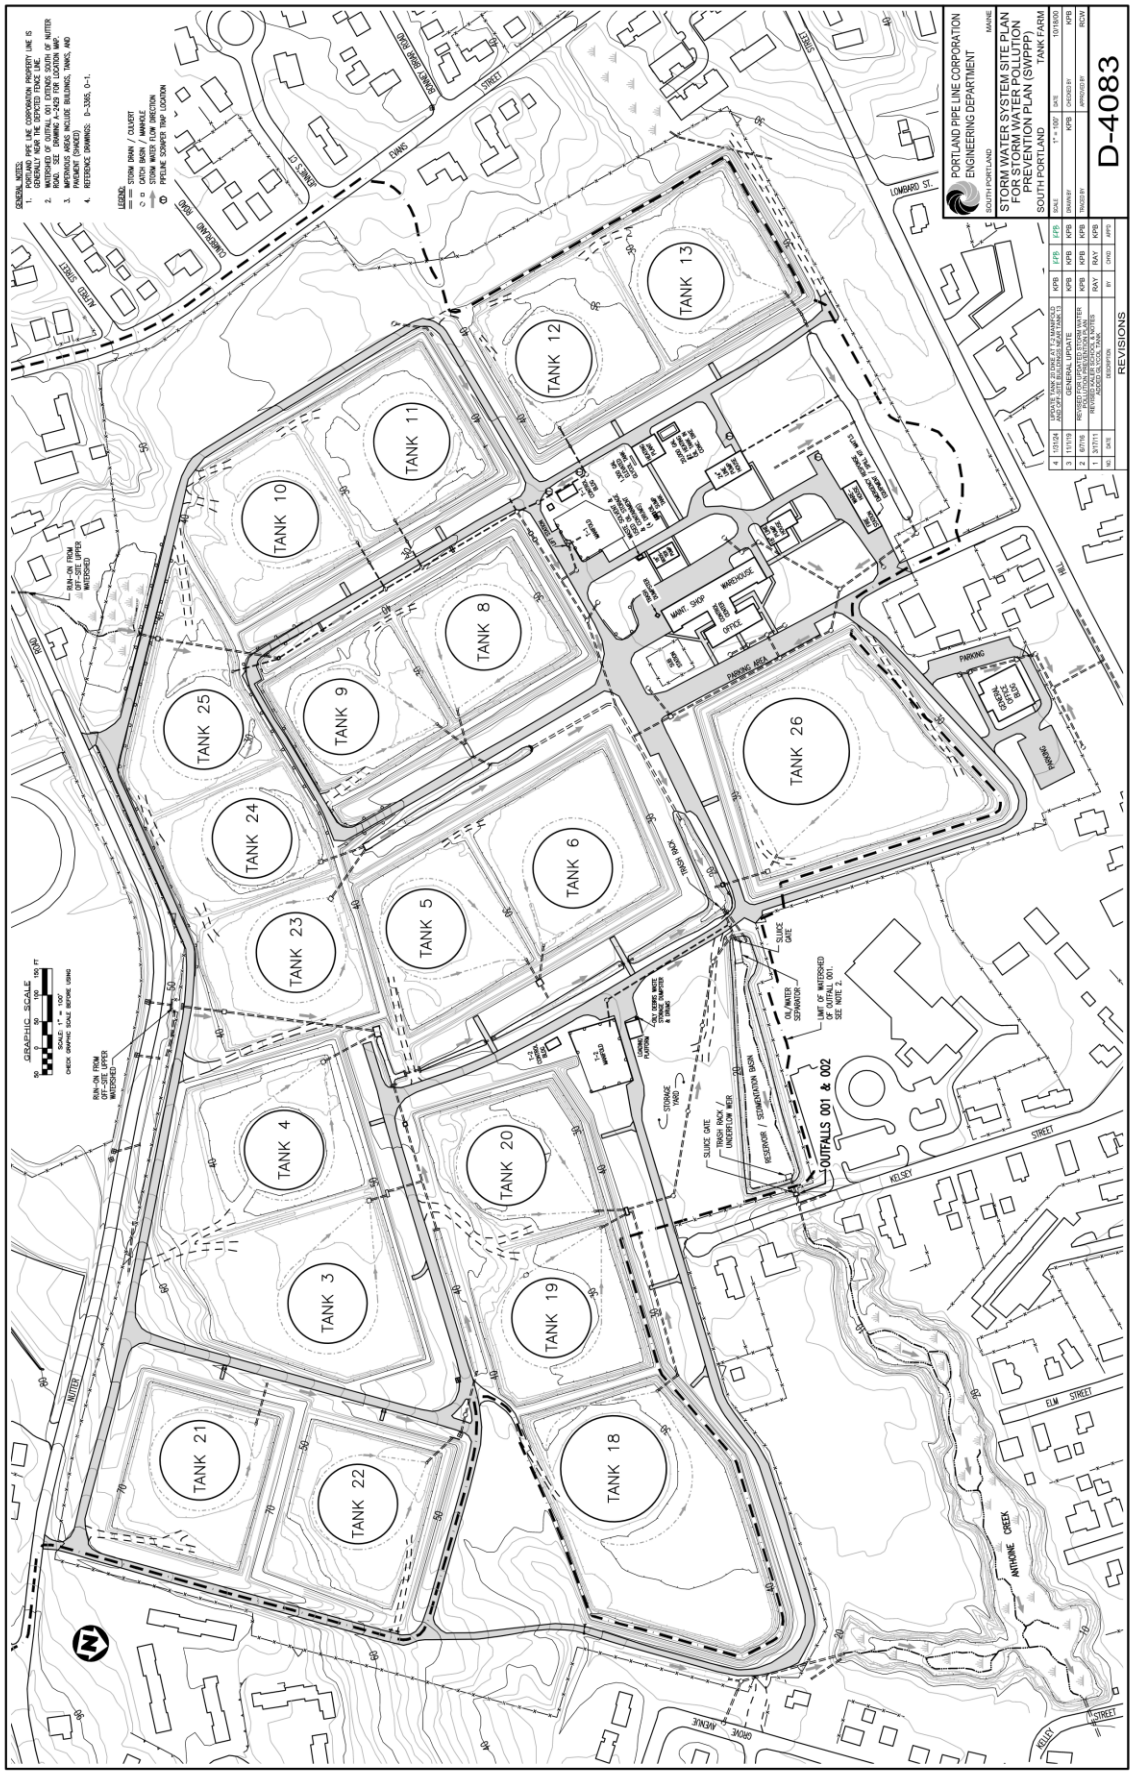

Exhibit 15b-2 – Storm Water Drainage Plan, Terminal Area

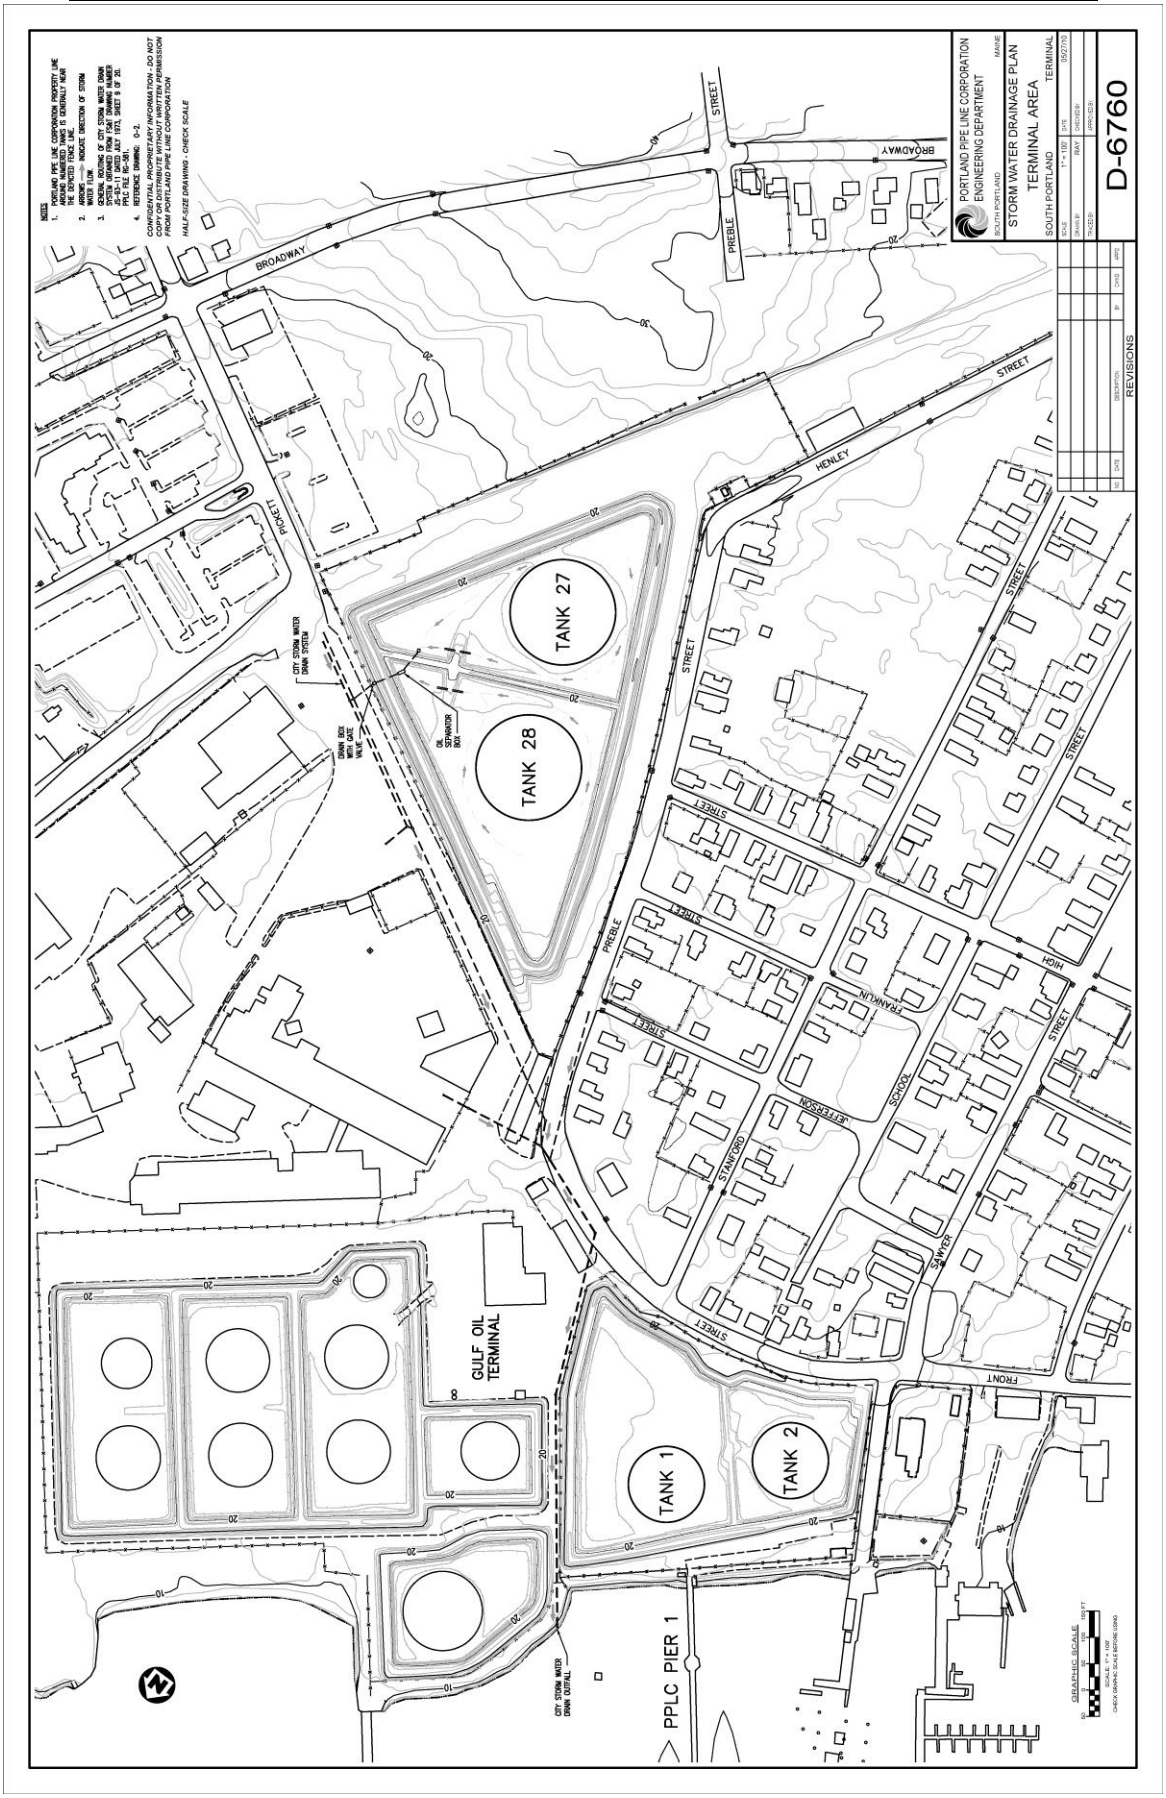

Exhibit 16 – Facility Drainage System

16. "Submit information indicating that the terminal drainage systems are in compliance with 06-096 CMR 600, § (7)(E)(1)–(5)."

PPLC is an existing marine oil terminal, and as such, this application for license renewal does not involve new designs. The existing water collection, drainage, discharge, and oil separation systems at PPLC facilities were designed at the time of their construction and are suitable for their intended service and operational conditions. The Natural Hazard Risk Assessment included under Exhibit 25 includes review of these systems under 06-096 CMR 600, § (7)(K)(3) and confirms their continuing suitability.

PPLC's oil/water separators are constructed of reinforced concrete, rather than steel, to provide for corrosion resistance and longevity.

Storm water discharges from PPLC's tank farm facilities are permitted by the Department under the Maine Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (MEPDES) permit #ME0021440 and Maine Waste Discharge License (WDL) #W002651-5S-G-R, and under Multi-Sector General Permit (MSGP) for Stormwater Associated with an Industrial Activity #MER05C234.

System drain valves are provided at the drain outlet from each tank dike, at the inlet to the oil/water separator, and at the outlet from the tank farm reservoir. Drain valves are located at easily accessible locations for emergency closure under all conditions.

Dike drainage valves are kept in the closed position, except at times of drainage. The valves are operated under the supervision of trained personnel. Dike drain valves are located outside the dike areas for easy access for emergency closure under all conditions. All tank farm dike drainage flow travels through the oil/water separator and reservoir system.

PPLC does not currently store No. 6 oil or asphalt; therefore, those aspects of 06-096 CMR 600 § (7)(E)(4)(a) do not apply to PPLC for that reason as well.

Which tanks at the facility are riveted tanks? Not applicable
Have any of these tanks been sealed in accordance with 06-096 CMR 600, § (8)(B)(5)(b)?" ☐ Yes ☐ No

There are no riveted tanks at the PPLC marine oil terminal. Therefore, this question is not applicable.

Exhibit 18 – Financial Responsibility

18. "Attach documents showing evidence of financial responsibility that is sufficient to cover the preliminary closure plan cost estimate to ensure proper closure as required in 06-096 CMR 600, § 9(C)(5), and 38 M.R.S. § 552-B(1)(B) and (C). This must be specific to closure of the facility. General environmental liability insurance (#23 below) does not cover closure."

The certification on the following pages demonstrates that PPLC meets the financial responsibility requirements to ensure proper closure as required in 06-096 CMR 600, § (9)(C)(5) and in accordance with the requirements of 40 CFR Part 280.96 and 280.103 through the use of a Guarantee and Standby Trust sufficient to cover the preliminary closure plan cost estimate.

Exhibit 19 – Inventory Control

19. "Submit documentation indicating that the facility inventory control meets the requirements found in 06-096 CMR 600, § (9)(C)(1) (a) and (b)."

PPLC's marine oil terminal and international pipelines are monitored 24 hours a day, seven days a week by personnel (Controller) in the Control Center located at the South Portland Tank Farm. The Controller maintains surveillance of the Tank Farm, eight pump stations, and the Montreal East Terminal through the supervisory control and data acquisition system (SCADA). Department representatives have reviewed the SCADA system and the CPM system described below during facility inspections.

Storage Tanks:

Each of PPLC's storage tanks is equipped with an automatic tank gauge. The tanks have a radar gauging system that transmits electronic tank liquid level measurement data to the SCADA system for display and recording. The tank level and tank valve status of both active and inactive tanks are communicated several times a minute to the SCADA display that is monitored by the Controller.

SCADA also monitors inactive tanks for unexpected level changes (creep). This creep alarm feature provides the Controller with a warning when an inactive tank receives or loses an unexpected quantity of oil due to an unexpected event, such as an improperly seated valve.

Snapshots of the tank level gauge measurements are recorded each day at midnight and these reports are manually reviewed. In addition PPLC personnel verify the automatic gauges by hand gauging each tank on a regular basis.

All Tank Farm tanks are also equipped with two independent high level transmitters which activate separate audible and visual alarms if the normal safe filling height of a tank is exceeded.

Pipelines:

PPLC's pipelines have a Computational Pipeline Monitoring (CPM) leak detection system. This system compares the measured volumes injected into a pipeline segment against the measured volumes delivered out of the segment, while for longer pipeline segments also accounting for changes in line pack due to pressure, temperature, and density variations. The CPM hydraulic model receives real time data from SCADA as inputs, and sends alarms to SCADA as outputs.

In addition to the continuous loss monitoring performed by the SCADA and CPM systems and the midnight stock reviews, a formal reconciliation of facility inventories is completed once per month. The process includes the investigation and reporting of any loss that exceeds 0.5% of throughput on a monthly basis.

Exhibit 21 – Title, Right or Interest

21. "Attach a copy of the applicant's title, right or interest to the property (refer to Chapter 2, § 10(D) for guidelines). Acceptable documents include a copy of a deed, lease agreement etc."

Documentation of PPLC's title, right or interest to its marine oil terminal property has been provided previously in the form of copies of the deeds, leases and easements to the terminal properties in South Portland. PPLC's 2015 license renewal application Exhibit 19 provided 287 pages of these documents, which are incorporated herein by reference. There have been no additions or deletions since that application was filed. The properties are generally in five locations as described further below, connected by pipelines located in easements between the properties.

Pier 1:
PPLC's Pier 1 and adjacent properties at Front and Portland Streets include the pier, Tanks 1 and 2, and the Terminal Building parcels. PPLC acquired the original land and water rights in fee in 1941, assembling several smaller parcels into the two parcels on either side of Portland Street. PPLC also holds a Submerged Lands Lease for Pier 1 from the State of Maine Department of Conservation Bureau of Parks and Lands.

Pier 2:
PPLC's Pier 2 and adjacent properties at Marina Drive, Cushing Court and Madison Streets include the pier, adjoining land, and the land leased as the eastern portion of Bug Light Park. PPLC acquired the land and water rights for the pier in fee in 1955, acquired easement rights for adjacent waters to the northwest in 1977, and acquired adjacent riparian property in fee in 1996. The chain of title for these acquisitions generally runs back through the United States government, which owned the area as a Navy shipyard during World War II. PPLC also holds a Submerged Lands Lease for Pier 2 from the State of Maine Department of Conservation Bureau of Parks and Lands.

Preble Street:
PPLC's Preble Street property at Broadway and Preble, Front, and Pickett Streets includes Tanks 27 and 28 and Transfer Pump 5. PPLC acquired the property in fee in 1966.

Sawyer Street:
PPLC's parcel at Sawyer Street and Maple Avenue was acquired in fee in 1962.

Tank Farm:
PPLC's Tank Farm property at Hill, Evans, and Kelsey Streets and Grove Avenue and Nutter Road includes the main tank farm, offices, maintenance shops, and originating pump station for the interstate transmission pipelines. PPLC acquired the property in fee over several years beginning in 1941.

The documentation on the following page demonstrates that PPLC meets the liability insurance requirements of 38 M.R.S. §§ 546(4)(E-1), 552 and 552-B(1)(A) in an amount no less than $2,000,000.

Re: Preliminary Facility Closure Plan & Cost Estimate
30 Hill Street, South Portland, Maine
St.Germain File No.: 3790-0001

Dear Ken:

In 2021, Portland Pipe Line Corporation (PPLC) retained S.W. Cole Engineering, Inc. (S.W. Cole) to generate a Preliminary Closure Plan (Plan), including cost estimates, which was submitted to and approved by the Maine Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) via issuance of a renewal to the site's Marine Oil Terminal License.

St.Germain is submitting an update to the cost estimate previously completed by S.W. Cole. This cost estimate reflects 15% cost increases due to inflation and new information and updated contractor cost estimates. This is being prepared as part of a renewal application for the PPLC Marine Oil Terminal License and is to comply with 38 M.R.S. §§ 546(4)(E-3), 552-B(1)(B) and (2), and Maine DEP Chapter 600 § 9(5)(b) and § 13(B). An updated cost estimate is provided as Attachment A - Facility Closure Cost Estimate.

St.Germain has reviewed S.W. Cole's Plan and has determined that it continues to satisfy the Maine DEP's requirements, and that no changes to the facility since the 2021 submittal require updates to the plan. Thus, the S.W. Cole Plan is being re-submitted as a previously approved plan with updates to the cost estimate only. The Plan is included in Attachment B – Preliminary Closure Plan.

The revised total cost estimate for the facility closure is $11,725,000. Therefore, PPLC is required to provide evidence of adequate funds to meet this revised financial responsibility requirement per Chapter 600 §9(C)(5). Financial responsibility may be established, subject to the approval of the Commissioner, by anyone, or combination of, the following: insurance, guarantee, surety bond, letter of credit, trust fund, or qualification as self-insurer.

If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to contact me at (207) 591-7000 or by email (thaliah@stgermain.com).

Sincerely,
ST.GERMAIN

1.0 INTRODUCTION

Portland Pipe Line Corporation (PPLC), located at 30 Hill Street in South Portland, Maine, operates under Maine Department of Environmental Protection (MEDEP) marine oil terminal facility license numbers O-000305-91-G-R and O-000306-91-G-R. The MEDEP has requested a preliminary closure plan with closure costs as part of PPLC's 2020 license renewal application. The preliminary closure plan is to comply with 38 M.R.S. §§ 546(4)(E-3) and 552-B(1)(B) and (2). The MEDEP has additionally requested that if the preliminary closure plan with closure costs exceeds the current financial assurance, then an updated financial assurance must be provided within 30 days of MEDEP approval of the closure costs as modified by the MEDEP.

2.0 DESCRIPTION OF FACILITY

The PPLC facility in South Portland consists of two piers and 23 aboveground storage tanks (ASTs) in four separate areas:

- The Hill Street Tank Farm area is an approximately 100-acre location bound by Hill Street, Evans Street, and Nutter Road and includes 19 ASTs (Tanks 3, 4, 5, 6, 8 through 13, and 18 through 26), the T-1 Manifold, the T-2 Manifold, above and below ground piping, and various PPLC support buildings and infrastructure.
- The Pier 1 area is located along the waterfront, northwest of Front Street, and includes the Pier 1 infrastructure and 2 ASTs (Tanks 1 and 2) situated on approximately 8 acres of land area.
- The Henley Street Tank Storage and Pump 5 area is an approximately 23-acre location situated along the east side of Preble/Henley Street and includes 2 ASTs (Tanks 27 and 28), as well as the Pump 5 infrastructure.
- The Pier 2 area is located along the waterfront, north of Cushing Court, and includes the Pier 2 infrastructure.

Additionally, the South Portland PPLC facility includes underground pipelines interconnecting these four areas.

See Appendix A for a Facility Layout Plan.

2.1 Aboveground Storage Tanks

The following table provides summary information for the facility's ASTs:

2.2 Underground Piping

A 24" pipeline, a 30/36" pipeline, and a 36/42" pipeline connect the Hill Street Tank Farm to the Pier 1, Pier 2, and Henley Street Tank Storage and Pump 5 areas. Within each area, the ASTs are connected by 24" or larger pipelines (tank lateral piping). The remainder of the underground piping within each area can be grouped into the following categories:

- Hill Street Tank Farm area
    - 18” Main Line up to the Pump House and Booster piping;
    - 24” Main Line up to the Pump House and Booster piping; and,
    - Heating Plant piping.
- Pier 1 area piping
- Henley Street Tank Storage and Pump 5 area piping

At the time of preparation of a final Closure Plan, PPLC will complete a comprehensive piping survey showing the location of all former, current, and abandoned pipes within each area, as well as interconnecting pipelines.

2.3 Above Ground Piping

Aboveground piping is present in all four PPLC areas and can be grouped into the following categories:

- Hill Street Tank Farm area
    - T-1 manifold piping;
    - T-2 manifold piping;
    - AST transfer pump piping; and,
    - Aboveground AST lateral piping.
- Pier 1 area
    - AST transfer pump piping; and,
    - Aboveground AST lateral piping.
- Pier 2 area
    - Aboveground portion of the 30/36” pipeline located at Pier 2;
    - Aboveground portion of the 36/42” pipeline located at Pier 2; and,
    - Transfer arms and manifold piping located at Pier 2.
- Henley Street Tank Storage and Pump 5 area
    - AST transfer pump piping;
    - Aboveground AST lateral piping; and,
    - Pump 5 piping.
- Miscellaneous Aboveground Piping

Much of the aboveground piping present at PPLC is contiguous with underground piping described in Section 2.2.

At the time of preparation of a final Closure Plan, PPLC will complete a comprehensive piping survey showing the location of all former, current, and abandoned pipes.

3.0 SUMMARY OF CLOSURE ACTIVITIES

In accordance with 38 M.R.S. §§ 546(4)(E-3) and 552-B(2), PPLC provides the following information.

3.1 Soil and Groundwater Investigation

Prior investigations, including a Hydrogeologic Investigation Report authored by E.C. Jordan in 1992, indicate that there are no known or anticipated soil, groundwater, or surface water impacts at any of the four discrete areas of the facility. At the time of closure, PPLC will assess the potential presence and areal extent of impacts by conducting an investigation as outlined below.

PPLC will contract with an independent environmental consultant to conduct a soil and groundwater investigation of the facility prior to closure. The consultant will develop a project specific Sampling & Analysis Plan (SAP) to include a conceptual site model, descriptions of sampling methodology, and an explanation of sample parameters to assess the presence of potential contaminants.

To assess the potential presence of soil and groundwater contaminants, an environmental drilling company would complete soil borings throughout each area of the facility, predominantly in unpaved areas within tank dike walls.

Generally, the soil borings would be advanced to an estimated 15 feet below ground surface (bgs). Soil samples collected from the borings would be screened in the field for volatile organic compounds (VOCs) using a photoionization detector (PID) and oleophilic dye shake test ‘Oil-in-Soil’ canisters in accordance with MEDEP Standard Operating Procedure TS004 ‘Compendium of Field Testing of Soil Samples for Gasoline and Fuel Oil’.

Soil samples would be submitted for laboratory analysis based on field observations, PID screening results, and the oleophilic dye test results. The soil samples would be analyzed for extractable petroleum hydrocarbons (EPH) via Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (MADEP) Method EPH/VPH 04. If detections are noted in any given sample, the soil sample would be additionally analyzed for volatile organic compounds (VOCs) via EPA Method 8260 and semi-volatile organic compounds (SVOCs) via EPA Method 8270. One composite soil sample from within each AST dike containment area would be analyzed for RCRA 8 Metals via EPA Method 6010/7471, inclusive of total lead. The analytical results would be compared to applicable MEDEP Remedial Action Guidelines.

Groundwater samples would be collected from 12 existing and 2 proposed new groundwater monitoring wells. Groundwater samples would be analyzed for extractable petroleum hydrocarbons (EPH) via MADEP Method EPH/VPH 04, volatile organic compounds (VOCs) via EPA Method 8260, semi-volatile organic compounds (SVOCs) via EPA Method 8270, and RCRA 8 Metals via EPA Method 6010/7470. The analytical results would be compared to applicable MEDEP Remedial Action Guidelines.

Following completion of the investigation, the consultant would develop a summary report outlining the findings of the investigation, comparing findings to appropriate MEDEP Remedial Action Guidelines, and including the supporting documentation (SAP and lab reports). As encountered, the summary report would additionally include an estimate of the volume of soils and groundwater contaminated above unrestricted use cleanup standards.

3.2 Product Removal

All oil and oil residuals will be removed from active ASTs, piping, containment systems, and ancillary equipment. It is anticipated that facility piping will be evacuated by displacing crude oil within the piping with displacement pigs into the ASTs. It is anticipated that all crude oil product remaining at the facility at the time of closure will be pumped out of the ASTs and transferred via pipeline, tanker truck, or rail to a refining facility. Any oil residuals, waste oils, etc. will be removed from the facility by a licensed hazardous waste disposal company and disposed of at a properly permitted disposal facility in accordance with applicable local, state, and federal regulations.

3.3 Infrastructure Removal

All ASTs and aboveground and underground piping will be removed from within the boundaries of each of the four areas of the facility. Underground pipelines interconnecting the four areas of the facility will be purged, capped, and filled with inert gas.

All ASTs will be cleared for entry in accordance with PPLC Health and Safety regulations. Based on the AST contents and condition, one or more of the following cleaning methods will be selected:

- Physical removal of residuals using scraping, wiping, shoveling, vacuuming, and/or adsorbents, as applicable based on remaining contents;
- Low or high pressure water wash;
- High pressure steam cleaning; and/or,
- Cleaning agents (i.e. surfactants, degreasers, etc.), if necessary, based on tank contents and in accordance with local, state, and federal rules, regulations, and guidelines.

All residuals, wash water, and/or cleaning materials will be properly disposed of by a licensed hazardous waste disposal company at a permitted disposal facility in accordance with applicable local, state, and federal regulations. Following AST cleaning, ASTs will be dismantled by an industrial contractor using typical industry practices and disposed/recycled off-site at a facility permitted to accept such material. This typically includes industrial-type shears mounted on excavators assisted by a project team.

All aboveground piping will be cleared of remaining product and flushed/cleaned prior to removal. All aboveground piping will be dismantled by an industrial contractor using typical industry practices customarily using shearing equipment.

All underground piping within the boundaries of each of the four areas will be cleared of remaining product, flushed/cleaned, and then removed by an industrial contractor using typical industry practices, typically using excavators and shearing equipment.

For underground pipelines outside of the boundaries of each of the four areas of the facility, PPLC will abandon this piping in-place. The underground pipelines that interconnect the four areas of the facility are outside facility boundary fence lines and are not feasible to remove due to their location beneath City of South Portland roads and intersections and adjacent to or beneath utility lines. Pursuant to MEDEP Reg. Ch. 600(12)(D)(2), the underground piping outside of the facility boundaries are located under permanent structures and are of such great size (extent) that it is impractical to remove. At the time of closure, PPLC will provide an abandonment plan of underground pipelines to MEDEP for review and approval. The abandonment plan will indicate that the pipelines will be pigged clean, displaced with nitrogen, and capped at facility boundaries, and piping to remain in-place will be filled with inert material such that the piping will not serve as an avenue for discharges of products stored at the facility in the future.

Buildings at the facility will remain in place after piping, pumps, and other product- or waste-containing installations have been removed.

3.4 Waste Removal

All remaining containers, liners, bases, and soil containing or contaminated with oil or oil residuals above unrestricted use levels or where contamination poses a risk of transport to water resources will be decontaminated or removed. The soil and groundwater investigation summary report will include an estimate of the volume of soils and groundwater contaminated above unrestricted use cleanup standards.

According to a Hydrogeologic Investigation Report authored by E.C. Jordan in 1992, the volume of potentially contaminated soil and groundwater is anticipated to be minimal.

4.0 PROBABLE CLOSURE COSTS

In accordance with 38 M.R.S. §§ 552-B(1)(B), PPLC has developed an Engineering Assessment of Probable Closure Costs. For the purposes of this Preliminary Closure Plan cost estimate, no salvage value was included, all tanks were assumed to be full, work will be performed by a third party, and a 25% contingency amount has been included.

The following table is a summary of Probable Closure Costs developed by PPLC. See Appendix B for an itemized Engineering Assessment of Probable Closure Costs.

5.0 CERTIFICATION OF CLOSURE

Within 60 days after a decision to close the facility, PPLC will submit a written facility closure plan, and implementation schedule to MEDEP for approval. Closure activities will not commence until MEDEP has approved the final Closure Plan. The final Closure Plan will provide:

- For the removal of all oil and oil residuals from ASTs, piping, containment systems, and ancillary equipment;
- For decontamination or removal of all remaining containers, liners, bases, and soil containing or contaminated with oil or oil residuals;
- For removal of underground piping; and,
- A comprehensive piping survey that shows the location of all former, current, and abandoned pipes.

The facility will be inspected at key points during closure activities by an independent Professional Engineer licensed in the State of Maine. Following completion of closure activities, PPLC will provide the MEDEP with a written facility Closure Completion Report, which will include certification from an independent licensed Professional Engineer that decontamination and closure activities were conducted in accordance with the MEDEP approved final Closure Plan and that all regulated substances have been remediated or removed.

Following MEDEP's acceptance of the facility Closure Completion Report, PPLC will file an underground piping survey with the Cumberland County Registry of Deeds detailing any piping that has remained in place.

1.0 EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This Natural Hazard Risk Assessment (NHRA) is a regulatory requirement under 06-096 C.M.R. Ch. 600 §7(K) (hereafter, Ch. 600), promulgated by the Maine Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). The rule was updated in 2023 to require all marine oil terminals to assess risks due to flooding and future sea level rise (SLR), including risks of oil discharges, threats to public health and safety, and impacts on facility operations. An NHRA is required to be submitted with each Marine Oil Terminal License (MOTL) renewal application.

As required, this NHRA evaluates risk over a 30-year planning horizon. The assessment uses Intermediate and High SLR projections as established in Scientific Assessment of Climate Change and Its Effects in Maine - 2024 Update (MCC STS, 2024; hereafter referenced in text as the MCC STS assessment). It also includes utilizing a newly required design precipitation event based on the 100-year, 24-hour recurrence interval.

The core outputs of the required assessment are organized into four key sections in this report. First, the data sources and analytical methods used to analyze the data are discussed in Section 4. The results from applying those analytical methods on the selected data, such as elevation outputs and risk scores, are discussed in Section 5. An analysis of those outputs and how they interact with the facility, including evaluations of risk scores and mechanisms, is provided in Section 6. Finally, mitigation measures, planning, and recommendations for future actions are provided in Section 7.

Key findings indicate that the inland tank farm facilities are not vulnerable to SLR. Pier 1 and Pier 2 are exposed to increasing risks from wave action and overtopping. Pier 2 is projected to experience overtopping of the approach pier by 2030 and wave crests during the 100-year storm can currently impact assets. Risk scores were assigned based on likelihood and severity of impacts, with Pier 2's pipelines, electrical systems, and fire suppression systems receiving the highest scores.

No immediate mitigation is required, but it is recommended that within the next five years, PPLC conduct coastal modeling and structural engineering reviews of Pier 2 and its assets. A mitigation plan should be generated from that assessment. Additional reviews for Pier 1 are advised prior to placing the system in service. Long-term adaptation strategies may include securing or elevating vulnerable assets and monitoring coastal erosion. The facility's current design and operational practices provide a strong foundation for resilience, and strategic planning will ensure continued compliance and operational integrity through 2055.

2.0 FACILITY DESCRIPTION

Portland Pipe Line Corporation (PPLC) operates its marine oil terminal in South Portland, Maine. Operations primarily consist of unloading petroleum crude oil ("products") at Pier 2 and piping to storage tanks prior to delivery to customers.

The operations consist of four distinct areas (see Figure A-1 in Appendix A):

- Hill Street Tank Farm. This location is PPLC's primary product storage area and base of operations. It includes 19 aboveground storage tanks (ASTs), the T-1 and T-2 manifolds, aboveground and underground piping, control systems, maintenance areas, and office areas. The parcel is approximately 100 acres and bounded by Hill Street, Evans Street, and Nutter Road.

- Pier 1. This location includes Pier 1, two ASTs, the Front Street manifold, a terminal building, and underground and aboveground piping. The ASTs are considered part of the Shore Tanks group. Combined parcels, including the pier, total approximately 8 acres. The Pier extends into Portland Harbor, and the parcels are bounded by Portland Harbor to the northeast and Front Street to the south-southwest, with Portland Street running between two parcels.

- Henley Street Tank Storage. This location includes two ASTs, Pump 5, aboveground and underground piping, and appurtenances. The two ASTs are considered part of the Shore Tanks group. The parcel is approximately 23 acres and is bounded by Preble and Henley streets to the west, Breakwater Drive to the northeast, Broadway to the south-southwest, and private properties to the north and south.

- Pier 2. This location consists of PPLCs primary product unloading system, emergency response equipment, backup power, aboveground piping, and related infrastructure. It consists of a small parcel on the shore of Casco Bay in addition to Pier 2, which extends into Casco Bay. The pier extends beyond the end of Marina Drive, and Cushing Court runs through the shore parcel (both Marina Drive and Cushing Court are private ways). The parcel combined with the pier is approximately 5 acres.

In addition to these operating areas, PPLC maintains a network of underground piping to move product between the piers, shore tanks, and the Hill Street Tank Farm.

The site operations utilize local public roads, public water and sewer, public stormwater infrastructure, public electrical utilities, and area emergency services.

3.0 TERMINOLOGY

A summary of abbreviations used in this report are provided below.

This NHRA contains numerous abbreviations as well as use of terms that can sometimes be ambiguous. When referring to flooded (as temporary from a storm) or inundated (as from SLR) areas, there are several terms to clarify. First, mapping of flood areas shown on FIRMs start with the 1% stillwater elevation (SWEL). The SWEL represents the sea level elevation including storm surge for the storm event, but does not include wave action. Wave action, including wave set-up and wave run-up, is added to the SWEL to establish a Base Flood Elevation (BFE), which is the value mapped on FIRMs. The BFEs are categorized based on the type and height of wave action. For PPLC, the relevant areas include AE and VE zones. As defined by FEMA, areas with low wave action (wave height <3') are designated as AE zones, while areas with high wave action (>3') are designated as VE zones. VE zones are generally considered to have a velocity component that contribute to force generation that can damage infrastructure.

In this NHRA document, each term is used for specific cases. For the purposes of this document, the term "SWEL" used through the document specifically refers to the 1% recurrence stillwater elevation – i.e., the sea level during the 100-year storm, inclusive of storm surge but exclusive of wave action. The term "BFE" as used in this document refers to the 1% recurrence flood elevation inclusive of wave action. The terms AE or VE zones generally refer to the BFE (the water elevation) as well as the horizontal extent of the zones (where the water moves over the land surface).

When discussing the VE zone, there are two components that are addressed. First is the SWEL, which can be considered as the constant sea level elevation that will be reached regardless of wave action. Assets below this elevation will effectively be underwater for the duration of an event.[1] Second is the VE zone wave crest elevation. This is the BFE for the VE zone and corresponds to the highest wave crest elevation projected. Note that the wave crest elevation does not correspond directly to a ground surface elevation – i.e., a 14' BFE in a VE zone does not imply that floodwaters will extend inland to the nearest 14' ground elevation. Instead, the inland extent of the VE zone is based on wave run-up.

Note that the SWEL and BFE in AE zones are very similar if wave action is zero or minimal, but refer to different concepts.

4.0 DATA SOURCES AND ANALYTICAL METHODS

This NHRA relies on a combination of site-specific data, publicly available scientific information, regulatory resources, and data analyses to evaluate present and future risks from flooding. Key sources include Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) Flood Insurance Rate Maps (FIRMs) and Flood Insurance Studies (FISs) for establishing base flood elevations; the Northeast Regional Climate Center (NRCC) for extreme precipitation estimates; and the 2024 MCC STS assessment, which provides localized sea level rise scenarios used to modify SWELs for future flood risk. Elevation data were derived from high-resolution lidar datasets supplemented by facility survey data and engineering drawings where applicable.

The analytical methods applied follow the DEP NHRA Guidance for Marine Oil Terminals (Maine Department of Environmental Protection, December 2024; hereafter referenced as the NHRA guidance document) and incorporate both qualitative and quantitative evaluations of vulnerability, criticality, and risk prioritization based on the likelihood and severity of potential impacts.

For all discussions of elevations, the North American Vertical Datum of 1988 is used, with units of feet.

The data sources and methods of analysis are described below. The output of these analyses are provided in Section 5.

4.1 Historical Flood Data

PPLC staff reviewed site historical records, institutional knowledge, and researched news clippings from known major events to determine impacts from past known flood events, to use as a calibration mechanism for future risk assessment. Cost data was checked via purchasing records where available.

4.2 Precipitation Data

The DEP rule requires this risk assessment be conducted using the 100 year, 24-hour design storm. The design storm was taken from the Northeast Regional Climate Center's (NRCC) extreme precipitation tables. The NRCC values applicable to the site are provided below in Table 1 and show the 5% and 95% confidence limits.

Historically, the predicted 25-year storm has been the design storm used for site development in Maine, as required by various regulations including 06-096 C.M.R Ch. 500 for stormwater management. These values are included in the table for comparison, as using the 100-year storm for design storm is a departure from historical requirements for analysis of stormwater.

Table 1
24-Hour Storm Prediction, Inches
South Portland, Maine

Estimate Type	25 Year	100 Year	Difference
Lower Confidence Limit	5.23	7.01	+1.78
Point Estimate	5.98	8.48	+2.50
Upper Confidence Limit	6.74	10.02	+3.28

The risk assessment, in particular with regards to the facility drainage assessment, was assessed for sensitivity to the range provided by the extreme precipitation upper confidence limit. Consistent with the method of using the localized median elevation for sea level rise scenarios, as opposed to upper and lower confidence limits, the point estimate of 8.48" from the NRCC data is being used as the design storm for this assessment.

4.3 Surface Elevation Data

Surface elevation data was taken from digital elevation model (DEM) data provided by the Maine GeoLibrary, which was derived from high resolution lidar collected for National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) (OCM Partners, 2025). The DEM data was used to identify site elevations and assess potential asset flooding under current and future sea level conditions. Asset locations were mapped and compared against modeled SLR scenarios and FEMA's BFE data. The vertical and horizontal accuracy of the DEM data and the locations of assets on the boundary of vulnerability to sea level rise were evaluated to determine if more precise ground-survey data was required. Based on topography and asset locations, the DEM was found to be consistent with existing facility drawings and elevation benchmarks, and the existing DEM data was found to provide sufficient resolution and accuracy to support this risk assessment, in conjunction with facility infrastructure drawings.

4.4 Flood Elevation Data & Projections

Flood elevation projections include evaluating both precipitation events and sea level rise scenarios.

Flooding concerns from precipitation events are primarily tied to tank containment dikes, where containment capacity or tank stability could be compromised due to water elevations. General site flooding considerations are required to be evaluated under a specific condition of the NHRA process, specifically for the facility drainage assessment and the capacity of site operations and oil water separators to handle flooding from precipitation.

Separately, flood elevation projections due to SLR in conjunction with the 100-year storm are based on coastal BFEs. For projections at the PPLC properties, these BFEs are generally not tied to surficial flooding from precipitation.

4.4.1 Flood Conditions Due to Precipitation

All PPLC properties were evaluated for drainage pathways and potential risks of flooding due to extreme precipitation from the new design storm. Risks evaluated included impact of precipitation to containment dikes, to non-oil handling areas, to pier operations, and to underground piping where applicable.

As a part of the evaluation, HydroCAD models were generated for containment dikes for the bulk storage ASTs and piping manifolds at the Hill Street Tank Farm, in order to estimate flood elevations in those catchment basins. See Figures A-2 and A-3 in Appendix A for catchment delineations.

4.4.2 Flood Conditions Due to Sea Level Rise

Flood elevations for the 100-year storm under intermediate and high SLR scenarios were established following the protocol provided in the NHRA Guidance, which was written based on data from the MCC STS assessment. This method utilizes the existing SWELs established in the most recent FISs, and makes adjustments to reflect present-day-actual and future-projected sea levels.

4.4.3 Adjusting SWELS, BFEs for SLR

BFEs affecting the PPLC properties include both AE and VE zones. When FIS studies are completed to generate BFEs, both AE and VE zone elevations are established on a starting SWEL and adjusted for wave set-up and wave run-up. Wave action in AE zones is expected to be less than 3’ in height with limited wave run-up, while wave action in VE zones is expected to exceed 3’ (FEMA, 2019).

Following the NHRA guidance, projected flood elevations are based on adding observed and projected SLR to existing SWELs. In order to analyze the outputs of this method, it is assumed that the current SWEL + future SLR elevation is the coastal elevation at which flooding will extend to, and all assets at or below that elevation will be impacted. No additional consideration of wave action is considered in these areas.

For both AE and VE zones, additional modeling may be required to correctly establish the BFEs and areal extent of impact from wave run-up after considering SLR projections. The NHRA guidance indicates that all areas within a VE zone must be considered as vulnerable to SLR, and that an implementation schedule for a coastal engineering analysis should be included in the NHRA results. Noting the guidance document's suggestion, wave-related risks to assets located within both AE and VE zones were evaluated, and it was determined that high-resolution modeling of wave setup and run-up was not necessary to support risk characterization for the specific sites under review during this or the next iteration of the NHRA, in part because most relevant infrastructure is already within the existing VE zones.

With regards to VE wave crest elevations, the additive model of the current BFE + projected SLR was applied in the same manner as for AE zone elevations, while noting that the actual projected VE zone wave crest elevations could be higher or lower depending on site-specific conditions. This method is adequate for PPLC's assets.

With regards to the horizontal extent of wave run-up for either AE or VE zones, each parcel was qualitatively evaluated for site-specific conditions that could be at risk for varying extents of wave run-up, considering wave crest elevation, site topography, and the existing FIRM flood hazard boundaries as they related to wave height and topography. Conclusions were drawn as to the risk of flooding impacts to PPLC property or assets as a result of these qualitative assessments.

These methods of establishing BFE boundaries in general, and VE zone wave crest elevations in particular, leave unquantified uncertainty. Additional uncertainty exists in the SLR models used to establish the intermediate and high SLR scenarios. The NHRA guidance document suggests adding a 1-foot freeboard value to account for uncertainty. As a practical matter, an alternative freeboard method is to use a 5-year acceleration factor, rather than an upward adjusted flood elevation, by subtracting five years from the year-to-impact assessment (described below). This is a practical approach for an existing facility, as the adjustment is adjacent to the 83rd percentile range established as the upper bound of the statistically likely SLR increase (MCC STS, 2024, Table 3) in the near-term planning horizon (through the early 2030s), and applies a less conservative approach at the 30-year planning horizon, allowing for observation of actual SLR and new SLR projections to be incorporated in future permit cycles. This method does not require evaluation of additional flood elevations with arbitrary values added, follows a statistically likely SLR elevation boundary, and follows an appropriate capital planning cycle. For these reasons, St.Germain utilized the 5-year acceleration factor in preparing this report. (Note that a 1-foot or higher freeboard value may be more effective for a site where new construction is planned, and where new design flood elevations need to be established or followed per permitting requirements).

To apply this acceleration factor, for an asset that (1) is currently within the horizontal boundaries of or adjacent to a VE zone; (2) is not currently flooded by the VE zone wave crest or horizontal boundaries, and (3) is anticipated to be flooded by the VE zone wave crest or run-up at some point in the future, the year-to-impact is adjusted to be five years earlier than the plain additive model indicates. For example, for an asset that exists at elevation 14', if the VE zone BFE is anticipated to reach 14' in 2040 based on the additive model, the risk to the asset is assessed as if beginning in 2035.

4.4.4 Establishing SLR Elevations

To establish the present-day flood elevation for the year of the renewal application submittal, the NHRA guidance document methods were followed. The SWEL provided in the FIS were adjusted upward using a rate of 0.012 feet per year from the year of the transect analysis (2013) found in the current effective FIS (FEMA, 2024) to the year of this permit application. The rate of 0.012 feet per year is based on the observed rate at the Portland tide gauge from 1993-2023 (MCC STS, 2024).

To establish future flood elevations based on projected SLR, data was taken from Table 3.3 of the NHRA Guidance, which are adjusted values from MCC STS (MCC STS. 2024; Table 3, p. 95). The table shows localized median sea level rise projections in considering the intermediate and high SLR projections for the Portland/South Portland area. The table data was interpolated to generate five-year increments in elevation changes. Use of five-year increments was selected to reflect the marine oil terminal license renewal cycle as well as to establish a granularity to planning that matches typical facility capital planning cycles. These interpolated SLR values were then added to the SWELs previously adjusted to present-day conditions as described in the paragraph above.

For AE zones, because the existing SWEL elevation and the existing BFE elevations are identical (after rounding per FEMA guidance), the adjusted SWEL is used as the BFE, noting changes to wave action could require additional adjustments to the BFE. For VE zones, the wave height was added to the adjusted SWEL to establish the adjusted BFEs, by using the difference between the FIS-established SWEL and BFE as the wave height.

4.5 Assessing Mobilization of Contamination

An assessment of existing hydrogeological data was completed to evaluate the potential for off-site impacts occurring due to mobilization of known or unknown petroleum product contamination in soil, groundwater, or surface water due to flooding and projected SLR. It should be noted that all known historical releases have been remediated to the satisfaction of the DEP and there are no known significant contamination sites as a result of the facility's marine oil terminal operations.

Hydrogeological assessments included a review of past releases at the site, topographical site factors, surficial geology, well mapping, and groundwater gradients. Likely mobilization routes, media, and downstream receptors were identified.

For the assessment, known contaminated areas were based on Hydrogeologic Investigation Report, Portland Pipe Line Corporation, South Portland, Maine (Jordan, 1992). This full site investigation was required by Ch. 600 marine oil terminal licensing at the time.

4.6 Risk Assessment Methodology

The outputs from the data collection and analysis methods described above were used to support a risk assessment of the various risk pathways that PPLC's properties and assets face given extreme precipitation and predicted SLR. The risk assessment included a review of each asset for the likelihood and severity of a negative outcome for each environmental, public health and safety, and operational concerns.

The risk assessment for each asset took a conservative (risk averse) approach and assumed certain conditions that would lead to the worst-case outcomes. For example, some of PPLC's assets are temporarily out of service, but the risk was evaluated from the perspective of the system being in service. Additionally, each assessment was completed considering the worst-case scenario at year 2055 under the High SLR scenario.

4.6.1 Asset Inventory and Classification

All facility assets were identified, mapped, and compared to projected BFEs as adjusted for sea level for the present application year, and for each five-year interval through 2055. When comparing asset elevations to SLR projections, the ground elevation at the location of each asset was used to determine vulnerability unless additional data was available and warranted using an alternative elevation (i.e., for assets installed on top of foundation structures, or underground structures). Utilizing ground elevations is generally the more conservative approach but is overly conservative for assets such as pole-mounted transformers.

Each asset was then determined to be vulnerable or not vulnerable to SLR based on where the asset was located in relation to projected SLR elevations and certain flood conditions. For each asset not presently affected by the BFE, but projected to be in the future, a first year-to-impact year was identified for each the SWEL and VE elevations.

All assets were then reviewed for criticality to the protection of the environment, public health and safety, or operational continuity.

Assets that were vulnerable to future flooding were then scored for risk based on the methods described below.

Assets not exposed to flooding and without relevant risk pathways were reviewed qualitatively for risk and, if determined there were no risks, excluded from quantitative scoring. This ensured all assets were considered during the risk assessment process.

4.6.2 Risk Pathways and Failure Modes

Risk assessments for each asset considered all relevant risk pathways – i.e., the general process that would cause a negative outcome. As required by Ch. 600, these pathways include but are not limited to erosion, collision, scouring, flooding, flotation, and buoyancy.

In addition to these pathways, wave and surge force exposure and access and egress were specifically evaluated. Other edge-case pathways were considered throughout the risk assessment process, but no additional pathways were determined to warrant inclusion in the assessments.

For assets subject to multiple risk pathways, each pathway was assessed for risk separately. For each risk pathway assessed, a primary, asset-specific failure mode was discussed if relevant. A failure mode is the most likely way(s) in which an asset could fail. An asset can have more than one failure mode for each risk pathway.

For each risk pathway and/or failure mode evaluated, risk was assessed for negative environmental, public health and safety, and operational outcomes .

4.6.3 Scoring Approach

Each asset was evaluated for the likelihood and severity of a negative outcome. A separate score was generated for each of the environmental, public health and safety, and operational impacts. For all three impact categories, the likelihood scoring was identical, but the outcome severity was unique to each category of impact.

Scoring was completed according to the criteria presented in Table 2.

Table 2
Risk Assessment Scoring Criteria
South Portland, Maine

Score	Likelihood	Consequences
		Environmental Severity	Public Health & Safety Severity	Operational Severity
1	Unlikely: Event may occur only in rare or exceptional circumstances	None: No release	None: No injury or damage	None: No disruption to operations
2	Possible: Event could occur under certain conditions	Release on property: Contained on-site	Damage to off-site property: Physical assets or equipment move off site and impact the public	Short Term (<1 Week): Temporary interruption with limited impact on facility performance, or property damage

Table 2 Risk Assessment Scoring Criteria South Portland, Maine
Score	Likelihood	Consequences
		Environmental Severity	Public Health & Safety Severity	Operational Severity
3	Likely: Event is expected to occur under the evaluated storm conditions	Release off property: Migration beyond site boundaries	Injury/Fatality: Direct harm to personnel, including injury or fatality	Long Term (>1 Week): Extended disruption requiring significant recovery or repair time, and property damage

Consideration of releases of product are evaluated under the environmental severity impact category, although impacts to public health & safety from releases are recognized. Consideration of the impact of release is scored exclusively under the environmental impact category to avoid duplicative scoring. For public health & safety severity, scoring consideration is limited to impacts outside of those from a release, such as physical damages from assets or equipment moving off site and impacting nearby properties, property, or equipment.

Impacts scores for each impact category were taken as the product of likelihood and severity. For example, considering the environmental impact of a particular risk pathway and failure mode, if the likelihood of a negative outcome occurring is 2 (possible), and the severity of the outcome is 3 (release off property), then the score for that particular risk would be $2 \times 3 = 6$. This scoring was repeated for each of the three impact categories.

The maximum score from each of the three impact categories was taken as the overall score for the asset. This is consistent with existing risk assessment procedures at PPLC. For example, if the environmental, public health and safety, and operational score products were 6, 9, and 2, the asset's overall risk score was 9, reflecting the highest score of the three categories. The impact category associated with the highest score was taken as the primary risk driver. If scores were tied, the impact category for each of the scores was included as the driver.

4.7 Ranking for Mitigation & Adaptation Planning

After the final risk score was obtained for each asset, the assets were sorted in descending order by the final risk score for ranking. Ranking evaluated total risk score followed by year-to-impact, where applicable.

For the purposes of conducting the risk assessment, many assets were sub-divided into smaller parts for more detailed evaluation. For example, there are various locations for equipment storage on Pier 2, and each location was evaluated for risk separately. However, once final risk scores were generated, many of these subdivided assets were regrouped where warranted if doing so did not negatively impact planning.

Additionally, since individual assets were evaluated for multiple risk pathways and multiple failure modes, these pathways and failure modes were typically regrouped, including regrouping lower risk pathways or failure modes to be subsumed under the highest risk score. For example, if an asset had a risk score of 9 due to wave force exposure, and a 3 due to risk of collision, both risk pathways were grouped for the asset and the final risk score of 9 was used. This approach was taken to ensure that mitigation and adaptation evaluations took the whole of the potential risks when considering planning, and lower risk elements could be included for consideration when planning for the higher risk elements.

5.0 RESULTS OF DATA ANALYSIS

This results section provides the output of the data sources and analytical methods used to establish facility conditions to support the site's risk assessment. Analysis of these results are included in Section 6.

5.1 Historical Flood Events

Table 3 below contains a list of the top 10 coastal flood events and the associated SWELs for the Portland tide station (NOAA, 2025), along with noted impacts to the PPLC facility. This list includes storms where no damage occurred at the facility. Historical flood events provide context for risk exposure at the site and how site infrastructure has performed under actual stress conditions, providing a benchmark when evaluating projected future risks.

Where noted, "incidental cost" means non-capital repair costs completed on expense that are not considered material from a financial perspective (less than $25,000).

Event Rank	Date	Feet (NAVD88)	Event	Impacts to PPLC
			Onshore Winds
10	11/20/1945	7.99	Nor'easter	Pier 1 was damaged by wind and swell during a nor'easter when a tanker moved against the pier due to timber-crib construction with non-spring fenders. Pier was entirely replaced in 1946 with an upgraded facility featuring spring fenders. Operational changes were instituted such that tankers are not berthed during major storms (i.e. they are not permitted to enter the port or they are required to leave the port), in order to eliminate potential risks.

In addition to coastal flooding, two major precipitation events caused minor damage at the PPLC site. During the October storm of 1996, 19 inches of rain fell in the area, causing major regional flooding. At the Hill Street Tank Farm, stormwater flow from the upper watershed caused the roadway at the inlet to the oil-water separator to overtop and caused minor erosion of the downstream slope. Slope repairs were incidental cost. In 2014, heavy precipitation caused stormwater to fill the reservoir downstream of the Hill Street Tank Farm oil-water separator, leading to minor slope slumping that was restored at incidental cost.

5.2 Precipitation

All PPLC operating areas were reviewed for impacts from the new design storm reflecting the 24-hour, 100-year storm event. This new design storm of 8.48" is 2.5" (41%) above the historically standard 24-hour, 25-year design storm.

Considering extreme precipitation independently, and separate from SLR, all PPLC's facilities are anticipated to handle the increased rainfall without substantial impact to operations. For critical assets associated with oil handling or public safety, existing systems and operational methods are expected to withstand these precipitation events.

Minor flooding in certain facility areas as well as nearby public roadways is anticipated, as is the standard expectation for all areas in the region subject to these precipitation amounts.

No flooding conditions were identified that would lead to risks to any critical assets that require special mitigation actions.

With respect to the NHRA requirements, the predominant expectation for the evaluation of precipitation is to evaluate the site's oil water separators and their ability to handle the new design storm volumes, whether by being sized appropriately to maintain operational capacity, or by utilizing other stormwater management options.

5.2.1 Facility Drainage Systems

The primary risk pathways for impacts to the drainage system include overwhelming an oil/water separator (OWS) such that it cannot function to remove oil, and the potential for flooding of diked areas that could lead to tank floatation or loss of containment capacity.

PPLC operates OWSs at its Hill Street Tank Farm and the Henley Street Storage area. At the Henley Street Storage Area, the OWS processes water captured by the diked areas around the ASTs.

Because of topography, Piers 1 and 2 are not subject to flooding solely as a result of increases in precipitation. The primary risk pathway for these locations is from SLR, storm surge, and wave action.

The Henley Street Tank Storage area, including Pump 5, is not impacted by SLR or storm surge due to its inland location, and is not susceptible to significant flooding due to its topography and existing site drainage.

Tanks 1 & 2 at Pier 1, and Tanks 27 & 28 at the Henley Street Tank Storage area, were all evaluated for precipitation impacts by completing a HydroCAD model of impacts to containment.

Given the Hill Street Tank Farm assets, topography, and connectivity to off-site stormwater, evaluation of extreme precipitation impacts required a segmented evaluation. At the tank farm, PPLC operates an oil water separator which handles stormwater from the facility's oil handling area as well as from non-oil handing areas and a significant off-site watershed which is funneled to PPLC's property via the City of South Portland's stormwater system. The off-site drainage area contributing to run-on to the Hill Street Tank Farm is approximately 100 acres of residential homes, schools, and public infrastructure. The City of South Portland does not have hydrologic modeling or complete stormwater infrastructure data in this watershed, and a HydroCAD model was not deemed necessary for this assessment since the offsite watershed is not part of the PPLC marine oil terminal.

Based on the Hill Street Tank Farm's stormwater infrastructure configuration, the stormwater from oil handling areas can be held in place at any point in time such that it does not combine with stormwater from the non-oil handling areas and the stormwater from off-site. Thus, we can accurately assess the impact of stormwater associated with the site's oil handling areas. Ch. 600 allows the facility drainage evaluation required under the NHRA to consider operational methods to manage stormwater, rather than limiting the evaluation to maximum potential flow rates through the OWS. This management approach is being applied to the facility drainage system at this location.

Notably, it is required by rule, at Ch. 600 §7(E)(4)(a), that "control of drain water from inside a diked area must be […] locked in the closed position except at times of drainage operations under supervision by personnel trained in the proper operation of drains and separators". Thus, under the design storm conditions, all diked containment areas are closed and not contributing to flow through the OWS. During the design storm, run-on from off site is anticipated to rapidly flow through the OWS, while stormwater accumulates within the closed diked areas.

Facility containment data and drawings for all ASTs and diked areas, including at the Hill Street Tank Farm and all shore tanks, were processed through HydroCAD using the 24-hour, 100 year design storm to determine the projected flood elevations within these containment areas. See Figures A-2 and A-3 in Appendix A. Operation standards for the design storm dictate that dike drains remain closed for the duration of the storm, thus maximizing the projected flood elevations inside the diked areas. Post-storm conditions were reviewed to assess risk, including whether tank stability and integrity would be maintained and whether containment remained available for product storage in the event of a release.

After analysis, it was determined that all diked areas had a remaining containment capacity exceeding 100% of shell capacity. To assess sensitivity to the storm magnitude, the analysis was re-run against the upper confidence limit for the extreme precipitation event and the diked areas still maintained containment capacity exceeding 100% of shell capacity. The projected flood elevations were also compared to tank bottom elevations, and it was determined that these flood elevations do not pose a threat to AST stability or flotation. In all cases, either the flood elevation did not exceed the tank bottom elevation, the flood elevation was below the minimum product level for in-service tanks, or the flood elevation was either minimal or mitigated by open manways for out of service tanks.

Based on this management method, no modification to any facility drainage systems for PPLC are required to meet the facility drainage requirements in Ch. 600.

5.3 Base Flood Elevations for Sea Level Elevation Projections

The BFEs for PPLC properties include AE and VE zones. The AE zone boundaries are currently mapped at 9' elevation in most locations where they impact PPLC properties. This is based on an 8.9' SWEL from the FIS, adjusted for wave action and rounded per standard FEMA practice for FIRM. At Pier 2 wave run-up is included in the AE zone boundary, and thus it is not mapped at the 9' elevation.

For VE zones, which use wave set-up and run-up on top of the starting SWEL elevation, the SWEL for all properties is also 8.9', per the FIS.

Following the methods described earlier in this report, BFEs were adjusted to present day based on observed SLR, and adjusted in five-year increments for 30 years into the future based on projected SLR under intermediate and high SLR scenarios.

For both AE and VE zones, the adjusted SWEL is considered to be the static elevation under which all assets are flooded. For VE zones, elevations between this SWEL and the adjusted wave crest height are considered intermittently flooded by wave action.

The Tables 4 through 6 below show the adjusted SWEL impacting all sites, the VE Zone wave crest elevations specific to Pier 1 (is identified as elevation 13 on the current FIRM), and the VE Zone wave crest elevations specific to Pier 2 (identified as elevation 14 on the current FIRM).[2]

5.3.1 Hill Street Tank Farm Flooding

The Hill Street Tank Farm is not directly impacted by SLR except in Anthoine Creek, which runs through a small, wooded area at the northeast corner of the property. No PPLC assets are vulnerable to the minor increased flood elevations for projected SLR.

[2] In the area of Pier 2, the mapped VE elevation is both 12' and 14' on the FEMA FIRM. The 12' elevation area includes only a small portion of PPLC property, and thus was ignored in the analysis – the more conservative 14' VE elevation as used for all assets.

5.3.2 Henley Street Storage Area

The Henley Street Storage Area is not directly impacted by SLR. See Figure 1 for an overview of PPLC's shore properties and SWEL encroachment.

5.3.3 Pier 1

The projected SWEL elevation at Pier 1 only marginally encroaches further into PPLC's property due to the steep shore slope. There is no projected impact due to the SWEL for any assets in this area. The 2025 adjusted and future projected 2055 SWELs under the high SLR scenario are provided in Figure 2. The SWELs for intermediate SLR scenario would show at slightly lower elevations.

The predominant impact at Pier 1 is the increase in wave height and wave run-up for the VE Zone. The maximum wave crest elevation is projected to impact elements of the Pier, and to cause wave run-up over the access road between Portland Harbor and Tanks 1 & 2. Wave run-up may reach the terminal building. Figure 3 below shows contours depicting the 2025 adjusted and 2055 projected wave crest elevations. These contours are only representative of the associated wave crest elevation, and do not show the areal extent of the projected VE zone. The contours do show what are likely to be the most extreme cases of wave run-up. Note the elevations do not approach the top of dike elevation, which is elevation 21.5'.

The projected AE elevation at Pier 2 is projected to expand further across the PPLC shore parcel at this location, however there are no assets on this parcel generating increased risk exposure. See Figure 1 above, for an overview of the Pier 2 adjusted and projected SWEL boundaries.

Because the AE zone at Pier 2 is delineated in the current 2024 FEMA FIRM using wave run-up derived from modeling, the boundary of the zone is not mapped using the 9' SWEL as it is in others AE zones in nearby areas. The wave run-up affecting the AE zone here is primarily due to the height of the waves in the adjacent VE zone. Without modeling, the specific boundaries of the AE zone cannot be delineated but based on the topography of the site we expect the boundary to extend just beyond the PPLC property line. We've conservatively used the assumption that the entire property will be affected by the wave run-up across this parcel. See Figure 4 for a representation of the expected shift in the AE zone boundary and a close-up view of the adjusted 2025 and projected 2055 SWELs.

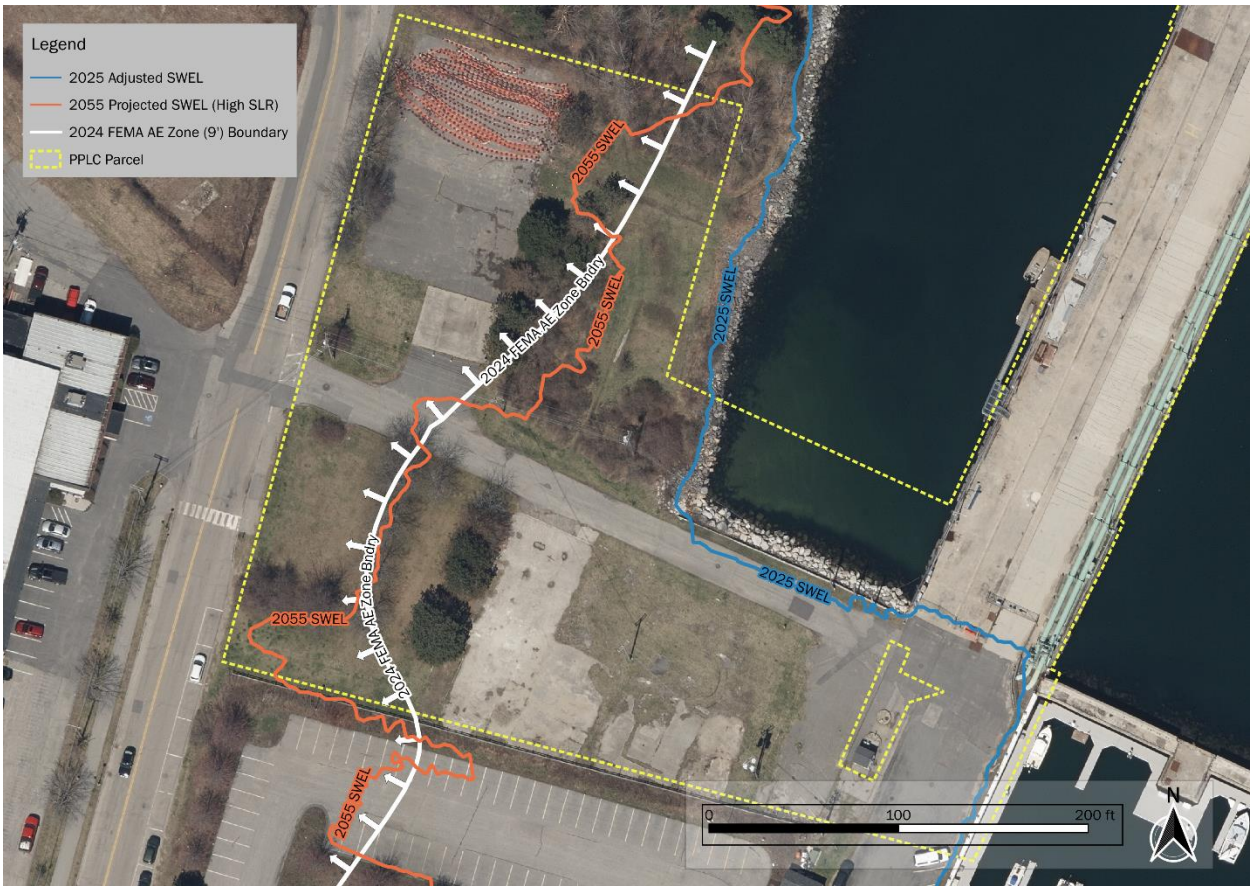

Figure 4: PPLC's pier 2 property, the adjusted 2025 and projected 2055 SWELs, and depiction of the expected shift in the AE zone boundary current mapped on the FEMA FIRM.

The projected SWEL elevation at Pier 2 is also projected to impact the pier, including overtopping the approach pier by 2030.[3] The SWEL will not impact the berthing pier.

The predominant impact at Pier 2 is the increase in wave height and wave run-up for the VE Zone. The wave crest height is projected to impact all assets on the pier by 2045 (when wave crests are first projected to exceed the berthing pier decking). Equipment mounted on the berthing pier are only marginally anticipated to be impacted by the wave crest height (roughly 4" of water).

5.3.5 Terminal Lines

Portions of the terminal lines located between the piers and the Hill Street Tank Farm are subject to flooding in projected AE zones and/or are projected to be within the expanded VE zone boundaries. These pipelines are underground and generally not impacted by changes in flood elevations. Pipeline buoyancy was considered for areas where the underground lines would be subject to new areas of flooding, including at Front St., Cushing Ct., near Mill Creek, and at the margins where the pipelines cross Mill Cove, and the pipelines were confirmed to be non-buoyant.

[3] The SWEL exceeded the approach pier decking on January 13, 2024 when the Portland tide station recorded the highest ever peak water elevation of 9.32' (NAVD88). This elevation exceeds the elevation of the current 100-year storm.

5.4 Mobilization of Contaminants

As discussed in the Section 4.5, the potential for mobilization of contamination is evaluated here based on the results of the 1992 site investigation (Jordan, 1992). Since 1992, PPLC has reported various releases of product to the DEP, and PPLC has responded immediately to remediate all spills to the DEP's required standards. Since 1992, there have been no spills that would be expected to materially change the output of a site investigation such as the 1992 investigation, and PPLC continues to conduct monitoring, including groundwater monitoring, for evidence of contamination.

The potential for mobilization of contaminants in soil, groundwater, or surface water due to flooding and projected SLR was evaluated for each area of the facility. The output of this evaluation is organized by each area below.

5.4.1 Hill Street Tank Farm

Sampling of groundwater and surface water at the Hill Street Tank Farm in 1991 and 1992 for petroleum did not show contamination (Jordan, 1992), indicating low risk of contaminant migration to off-site properties.

Topographically the site is at elevation ranging from 10-80 feet above mean sea level (msl) sloping gently to the north towards Anthoine Creek, Barberry Creek and the Fore River, approximately 1,500 feet from the site. Projected SLR boundaries show little encroachment in that area, indicating that projected water level encroachment will not reach the site. The risk is low for soil or sediment mobilization from the site to off-site locations.

Maine Geological Survey (MGS) mapping shows surficial geology beneath the site as the Presumpscot Formation, which consists of silt, clay, and minor sand deposited on the sea floor during the late-glacial marine submergence. The surficial geology's limited transmissive properties serve to reduce the risk of soil or groundwater contamination from migrating off-site, if contamination to soil or groundwater were to occur.

The Hill Street Tank Farm and surrounding area are served by public water and sewer. MGS water well mapping shows four private bedrock supply wells along Elizabeth Taylor Drive 1,000 feet west of the site and two bedrock supply wells at the east end of Baltimore Drive 1,400 feet east of the site. Based on existing topography, these supply wells are presumed to be hydraulically cross gradient and at low risk for impacts from the Hill Street Tank Farm.

5.4.2 Pier 1 and ASTs

Sampling of groundwater from monitoring well MW-108 located between the Tank containment berm and the shoreline, indicated the presence of separate phase product (Jordan, 1992). Follow-up visual inspections were performed along the shoreline downgradient of MW-108. No evidence of petroleum sheens or impacts were noted. Follow-up observations during removal of a buried pipe, along with subsequent testing, showed no recurrence of free product in MW-108. The E.C. Jordan reports concluded that residual petroleum contamination around MW-108 was localized in the immediate area of MW-108 and would not be expected to migrate away. Residual contamination that might still exist at MW-108 is at low risk of migrating off-site.

MGS mapping shows surficial geology beneath the AST containment area as artificial fill, which consists of a mixture of till, sand, and gravel that has been moved in order to elevate roadways and foundation structures as well as piers and industrial developments on the Portland and South Portland waterfronts. Topographically the containment area is at elevation 10 feet above msl sloping northwest towards Portland Harbor, approximately 75 feet from the edge of the containment area. Projected SLR does not reach the tank containment or the residential neighborhood directly upgradient, south of Front Street; therefore, the risk is low for soil or sediment mobilization from the containment area to residential areas south and topographically upgradient. Since the projected SLR will not reach the containment area, the risk for contaminant migration to Portland Harbor from SLR is also low.

The site and surrounding area are served by public water and sewer. MGS water well mapping does not show public or private bedrock supply wells within 2,500 feet of the Pier 1 and tank containment area. Therefore, the risk of groundwater impacts to drinking water supply wells is low. Potential contamination in groundwater would migrate hydraulically downgradient from the containment area towards Portland Harbor, attenuating by absorption, dilution, and biological degradation along the way, thereby reducing its concentration. The risk of contamination in groundwater migrating hydraulically upgradient towards residential neighborhoods is low, even under projected sea level rise, because the downward hydraulic gradient will remain south to north towards the harbor.

If contamination occurred to Portland Harbor as a result of a release at Pier 1, it would be contained and cleaned up in accordance with applicable state and federal emergency response plans. The mechanism for contamination migration would be surface water transport from Portland Harbor to the projected sea level rise encroachment lines. SLR does not substantially alter these mechanisms other than marginal differences to the location of encroachment lines. The risk of surface water carrying contamination up to or beyond the tank containment area and residential properties is low, because the projected SLR mapping shows little encroachment in that area.

5.4.3 Pier 2

Projected SLR in the area of Pier 2 shows little projected sea level encroachment west of the pier along the Bug Light park shoreline. Encroachment is shown south across Cushing Court and Wallingford Drive and extending further south along Marina Drive. Encroachment is more limited between the shoreline and the Breakwater Condominiums.

As with Pier 1, if contamination occurred to Portland Harbor as a result of a release at Pier 2, it would be contained and cleaned up in accordance with applicable state and federal emergency response plans. The mechanism for contamination migration to off-site properties from Pier 2 would be surface water transport from Portland Harbor to the projected encroachment lines. SLR does not substantially alter these mechanisms other than marginal differences to the location of encroachment lines.

Potential contamination in groundwater would migrate hydraulically downgradient from a source area towards Portland Harbor, attenuating by absorption, dilution, and biological degradation along the way, thereby reducing its concentration. The risk of contamination in groundwater migrating hydraulically upgradient towards off-site properties is low, even under projected sea level rise, because the downward hydraulic gradient will remain south to north towards the harbor.

5.4.4 Henley Street Storage Area

Analysis of groundwater at the Henley Street site in 1991 and 1992 did not show contamination (Jordan, 1992). This indicates low risk of groundwater contaminant migration to off-site properties.

Topographically the site is at approximate elevation 15 feet above msl sloping to the north and east towards Portland Harbor, approximately 1,200 feet and 800 feet respectively from the tank containment area. Based on FEMA mapping and projected SLR, sea level encroachment is not expected to reach the tank containment, Pump 5 area, or the residential neighborhood directly upgradient. Therefore, the risk is low for soil or sediment mobilization from the containment and Pump 5 area to residential areas west and topographically upgradient, or to Portland Harbor from sea level rise.

The site and surrounding area are served by public water and sewer. MGS water well mapping does not show public or private bedrock supply wells within 2,500 feet of the site. Therefore, the risk of groundwater impacts to drinking water supply wells is low. As indicated above, potential contamination in groundwater would migrate hydraulically downgradient from the tank containment and Pump 5 area towards Portland Harbor, attenuating by absorption, dilution, and biological degradation along the way, thereby reducing its concentration. The risk of contamination in groundwater migrating hydraulically upgradient towards residential neighborhoods is low, even under projected sea level rise, because the downward hydraulic gradient will remain to the north and east towards the harbor.

5.4.5 Terminal Piping

The PPLC facility includes underground pipelines interconnecting the above four areas and three pipelines transversing approximately 2.5 miles between the Hill Street Tank Farm and Spring Point. The majority of these three pipelines is outside the projected SLR boundaries. The risk is low for soil or sediment mobilization from these areas around the pipelines to areas further inland or towards the Fore River and Portland Harbor due to projected SLR. Potential contamination in groundwater along the transfer pipelines would migrate hydraulically downgradient from the pipes towards Portland Harbor, attenuating by absorption, dilution, and biological degradation along the way, thereby reducing its concentration. The risk of contamination in groundwater migrating hydraulically upgradient, further inland, would also be low, even under projected SLR, because as stated above the downward hydraulic gradient will remain towards the Fore River and Portland Harbor.

There are four general areas where transfer piping is located below the projected SLR extents: Mill Creek Park, Mill Cove, along Front Street, and areas of Marina Drive and Cushing Court. In these areas, projected SLR encroaches over the ground surface where the underground pipelines are located. The rise in water and increase in wave action could cause erosion and scouring around the pipes causing an increased risk of release. If a release were to occur, emergency response plans would be enacted and the release would be remediated to DEP standards.

5.5 Risk Assessment Outputs

5.5.1 Critical and Vulnerable Assets

An asset inventory and classification process was conducted per Section 4.6.1. The following assets were determined to not be vulnerable to SLR:

- Henley Street Storage Area, including Tanks 27 & 28 and Pump 5;
- Hill Street Tank Farm, including all tanks 3-26, dikes, manifolds, booster pumps, heating systems, and operational buildings;
- The Front Street Manifold located east of Tanks 1 & 2;
- Pier 2 unloading arms.

Other PPLC assets were identified as vulnerable, but not critical for environmental, public health and safety, or operational needs. Criticality in these cases was established based on whether the assets were needed to prevent a negative outcome for environmental, public health and safety, or operations. Regarding public health and safety, consideration was given to whether the assets were floatable such that they could impact other properties. Regarding operational concerns, a test of materiality applied. This test considered whether business operations could continue if the assets were damaged or destroyed. Continuance of operations are often possible by using secondary systems.

The non-critical equipment includes:

- Pier 1 access road;
- Buildings and structures associated with Pier 1, including above-deck structures such as the dock attendant's office, and the nearby terminal building;
- Pier 2 approach pier.

While the Pier 2 approach pier was considered non-critical, it does support other critical assets and was included in the risk assessment. All other remaining PPLC assets were considered critical and vulnerable, and assessed for risk. The output of the assessment is presented in Table 7.

5.5.2 Risk Assessment and Ranking

The output of the risk assessment and associated ranking per the method described in Section 4.6 is provided below in Table 7. This table groups assets under like risk scores. PPLC's internal files contain additional details, including sub-elements to individual assets and primary failure modes, which have aided PPLC in planning. To facilitate providing this NHRA without redaction for security purposes, the full list is not included in this submittal.

5.5.3 Exclusion of Operational Impacts

Ch. 600 and the NHRA guidance document reference a requirement to assess all critical assets for risk as a result of SLR, including operational risks. After completing the risk assessment, it was determined that none of the operational impacts that were scored would exceed PPLC's risk tolerance, and all environmental and public health and safety risks would be prioritized over any operational risk with regards to mitigation planning.

In the analysis of results below, assets with operational impacts from SLR are discussed, however in mitigation planning a higher risk score for an operational impact does not correlate with a higher prioritization.

6.0 ANALYSIS OF RESULTS

The output of the data analysis and risk assessment closely aligned to expectations as discussed during project scoping. The highest risks identified focus on the piping on the piers, the structural elements of the piers, and some pier equipment.

It should be noted that flood depth alone was not a strong predictor of overall risk. Deeper flooding is sometimes associated with somewhat higher risk, but higher risk scores are more often due to other vulnerabilities such as wave action and collision.

The analysis of results provided below reflects the assessments done for the high SLR scenario. The intermediate SLR scenario was also considered in the assessment, and determined to result in lower risk, delayed risks, or no risks for certain assets. As a practical matter, the high SLR scenario was the primary consideration with respect to planning strategy.

6.1 Facility Drainage Systems, Precipitation Extremes

Extreme precipitation events are projected to increase in frequency (MCC STS, 2024). In considering the risk assessment, no assets were identified as being exposed to unreasonable risk solely from increases in precipitation and exclusive of SLR. The PPLC sites and assets are currently able to handle the projected precipitation extremes.

The primary risk exposure for precipitation extremes is the flooding of diked areas and impact to OWSs. As shown in Section 5.2.1, the PPLC OWSs are anticipated to handle extreme precipitation through management of diked areas as required by Ch. 600. No change to OWS sizing is required.

Extreme precipitation events can also have an impact on site dependencies, such as water, sewer, power, access, and egress. None of these risk exposures increase in severity for PPLC operations, and current emergency planning programs adequately address these issues.

6.2 Current SLR Risks

The NHRA required that the SWEL be adjusted to reflect present-day conditions based on observed increases in SLR. This adjustment resulted in an increase of approximately 0.14’ to the SWEL based on the 2013 analysis year for the FIS. This is a marginal increase that does not change the list of assets already within the AE zone, and no change to the severity of impact to any assets in the AE zone.

In VE Zones, many assets are already subject to storm surge and wave action, unrelated to SLR. Adjusting the estimated wave crest elevation for the additional 0.14’ of observed SLR does not change the assets within or the impacts to assets within this zone.

The risk assessment identified no new risks to PPLC as a result of adjusting previously established flood elevations for observed SLR to-date. However, existing risks to the piers were confirmed and are addressed in this report.

The collection of historical flood data indicates that current risks based on the adjusted SWEL and in consideration of the 100-year storm do not warrant any critical mitigation or adaptation measures in the near term, but additional evaluations are required to ensure assets are robust against worst-case conditions. The most recent of major storms with record SWELs, in January of 2024, exceeded the present-day adjusted SWEL by just over 2”, with notable but minimal impacts to the facility. Other storm events that have affected the facility with lower SWELs have also resulted in notable, but ultimately minor, impacts. The history of storm events does not include observations of wave heights that match the predicted wave heights by FEMA. These conditions warrant further investigation via coastal modeling.

6.3 Future SLR Risks

The NHRA required that the SWEL be adjusted to reflect forward-looking projections of SLR based on the MCC STS assessment. This adjustment resulted in an increase of approximately 1.42' to the SWEL after accounting for adjustments made for observed SLR. This increase changes the likelihood and severity of impacts to some PPLC assets.

Within the AE zone, the SLR effects are not significant. There is no future risk at the Hill Street Tank Farm, though minor additional flooding is possible around Anthoine Creek in a wooded corner of the parcel, away from any site assets. At Pier 2, an AE zone is mapped that is anticipated to expand in areal extent, with minor increases to wave action as a result of increases to wave action from the neighboring VE zone. This AE zone already encompasses the majority of the PPLC parcel margins at this location. In the area of the parcel where further wave run-up could occur, the parcel is paved, landscaped, or wooded, and there are no terminal assets on this parcel other than utility poles. The ground surface in this area is higher than the SWEL, indicating that flooding depth will consist only of wave run-up with a depth less than 3 feet. The utility poles may be impacted by collision, however the site's back-up generator is an appropriate mitigation factor.

Changes to VE elevations and boundaries have only marginal effects on any PPLC assets and are unlikely to have material impact on risk planning. Few assets are expected to be added to the VE zone given the SLR scenarios, and while SLR may increase the intensity of certain wave forces within the VE zones, these changes do not substantially alter the risk since the risk exists regardless of SLR.

These risks have been effectively evaluated without the need for numerical modeling outputs evaluating VE wave crest elevations, wave set-up, or wave run-up, and the risk determinations are described in the sections below. However this modeling should be completed to support mitigation strategies, which will be discussed in Section 7.

6.3.1 Future SWEL Impacts within VE Zones

In the VE zones, the effect of increased SWEL, independent of wave action, is projected to affect several assets or asset groups not previously flooded by the SWEL. The SWEL in the VE zone is the constant water elevation independent of wave action. In storms where wave action is projected to be significant, the wave trough may be below the SWEL, while the wave crest is projected to be above the SWEL.

Risks associated with SWEL increases within a VE Zone while excluding wave action are unique in that they account for constant flood levels alone, instead of the added forces associated with wave action. Not every storm event generates significant wave action, thus it is appropriate to independently review the projected flooding from SWELs alone.

The SWEL impacts to PPLC properties and assets within VE zones exclusive of wave action are limited to the approach pier at Pier 2. There are no changes to SWEL impacts to any assets at Pier 1 over the 30-year planning horizon.

The soonest year-to-impact for increased SWEL levels is 2030, when the SWEL is projected to overtop the approach pier section of Pier 2 by 0.1', not considering wave action. In 2055, the approach pier is projected to be under 1.16' of water, again not considering wave action. These measurements are based on the decking elevation of the approach pier. On the pier are several assets that would be negatively impacted by rising SWELs, including 36" piping valves and ancillary assets such as equipment laydown areas, emergency response equipment storage, electrical control systems, a backup generator, fire suppression system electrical controls, fencing, and the pier's guard building.

The 36" piping valves affected by this SWEL increase are only affected by access limitations, which already exist due to the VE wave action. Since these valves are normally closed as part of pre-storm planning, no significant increased risk and no change to planning is required with respect to changes in the SWEL.

Most ancillary assets are only moderately impacted in year 2030 with a 0.1' flood elevation (SWEL) above the approach pier decking. As flood depths increase after 2030, the risk of impact to ancillary equipment increases. Ancillary equipment can be grouped into secured and unsecured assets. Unsecured assets include equipment storage, including Marine Spill Response Corporation (MSRC) emergency response equipment. PPLC has noted that equipment stored here is typically temporary and related to contractor activities, and thus can be easily moved as part of pre-storm planning if any equipment is stored at that time. MSRC independently manages its own equipment and pre-storm planning.

Secured assets include the electrical control systems, backup generator, fire suppression system with associated control system, and the security fencing and guard building. These are all permanently secured to the Pier 2 decking, and the lowest critical elements of these systems are greater than 0.1' above the decking of the pier. At year 2030, these assets have low likelihood of negative impact from the SWEL, but the risk increases through 2055 with an additional 1.06' of flooding.

The next year-to-impact for changes in SWEL is 2035, when the SWEL begins to exceed the fire suppression system's 10" and 8" bottom-of-pipe elevations. Full pipe inundation from the SWEL is not projected until 2055. Since these pipes are normally empty, pipe buoyancy is a concern, however these pipes are of modern design having been replaced in 2022 including supports with vertical restraint.

6.3.2 Future Wave Action Impacts in VE Zones

As discussed in Sections 4.4 and 5.3, the BFE in VE zones was establish by adding observed and projected sea level rise to the VE zone elevations mapped on the FIRM applicable to Piers 1 and 2. All assets in the VE zones were determined to be vulnerable to SLR, were assessed for risk, and are evaluated for the relevance of impacts in this section. Because there is uncertainty around VE elevations and extents without advanced modeling – modeling which is not required as part of this NHRA – a five-year acceleration factor was used in lieu of an elevation freeboard. These accelerated timelines are discussed below as applicable.

After assessing the PPLC assets for risk, it was determined that only one PPLC asset that is currently outside of the VE zone may be within the VE zone, or the delineated VE zone extent, due to SLR prior to 2055. This is the dike for Tanks 1 & 2, which may be subject to erosion at its western-northwestern toe due to wave run-up by the year 2040. Planning for this eventuality should consider 2035 as the first year-to-impact. The risk score for this asset is 6, making it a lower priority for planning than other items below. This is due to the lower likelihood of a negative outcome from dike failure, as dike failure alone does not produce an immediately high risk to any impact category. The ASTs are outside the potential area of impact. Instead, in the event of scouring leading to a dike wall failure, containment capacity may no longer be adequate, and PPLC could quickly pump the tank contents to an alternate storage location until such a time that the dike wall could be repaired.

The remaining assets at both Pier 1 and Pier 2 that are already delineated within the VE zone and ranked with a risk score of 9 do not have significantly increased risk as a result of wave action increased by SLR in the near term (five years). Risks increase over time as a wave crest elevations are projected to increase. As wave crest elevations increase, assets begin to be periodically submerged with the incoming waves, but are not permanently submerged for the duration of the storm unless the SWEL elevation exceeds the asset elevation.

Piping at Pier 2 is subject to overtopping by wave crests and is subject to buoyancy forces as established by current VE zone delineation from FEMA. Piping at Pier 1 is also subject to partial overtopping by wave crests as established by current VE zone delineation from FEMA, and thus subject to partial buoyancy forces. The 16" piping is projected to be fully overtopped by wave crests by year 2035 (planning year 2030), and the 24" piping is projected to be fully overtopped by wave crests by 2050 (planning year 2045). Because the Pier 1 piping is currently out of service and empty of product, the risk of asset failure is low.

Other assets within the VE zone boundaries that are subject to increasing risk as wave crest elevations increase are located at the approach pier for Pier 2, and are the same assets that are subject to SWEL increases discussed above. These include the ancillary assets of equipment laydown areas, emergency response equipment storage, electrical control systems, a backup generator, fire suppression system electrical controls, fencing, and the pier's guard building.

These assets are at increased risk of movement off the pier or damage with increasing wave crest elevations. As wave crest elevations increase, unsecured equipment is likely to mobilize. Mobilization may lead to these assets impacting other assets, including secured assets, or moving off the pier. Since the assets reviewed are generally heavy, metal objects, there is limited potential to float such that they could cause damage to off-site property (e.g., vessels, homes, buildings, etc.) or properties (i.e., parcels), however there is some possibility that assets such as Conex boxes could float for some period before sinking.

The more likely risk pathway for unsecured objects is to impact other assets on the pier, including the secured assets such as the generator, electrical control, and fire suppression systems.

For the secured assets, substantial waves forces have the potential to break the assets free of their secured positions. The assets could then impact other assets, or in the case of the generator, release fuel oil, and in the case of the fire suppression system, release class B fire suppressant. The generator and electrical system are unlikely to become floating debris such that they could impact off-site property or properties. The fire suppression tank has the potential to float and impact nearby vessels, but more likely would sink immediately due to the mass of the tank combined with the density of the suppressant.

Additional assets potentially impacted by wave action are of lower risk, ranked with risk scores of 6 or below, and predominantly consist of underground piping near shorelines where scouring or erosion could occur during a storm, exposing the piping to wave forces or collision impacts. The risk to these assets requires multiple failure modes to occur in quick succession, thus the likelihood of the combined factors occurring is lower.

As a whole, both piers are structurally exposed to wave forces, and have been exposed to these forces for decades. A review of the flood history and associated damages indicates that the assets are generally robust to these forces, with limited impacts during the 1976 flood, which has been used as a benchmark for the 100-year storm event, and the 2024 back-to-back storms, which caused widespread damage throughout the state. Incremental increases in SLR will increase exposure of the piers to damage as the horizontal support members and decking structures begin to be overtopped. The piers were robustly designed to manage the forces of loaded tanker vessels at berth, however additional structural engineering reviews are warranted to determine if hardening or alternative designs are required.

6.3.3 Future Impacts from Buoyancy

PPLC's pipelines were evaluated for risks from buoyancy under the projected SLR conditions. Empty and full pipe conditions were both considered. For the cross-town underground terminal lines, neither full nor empty pipes would be buoyant. These pipelines were specifically reviewed at the margins of Mill Cove, and in areas newly subject to SLR such as along Front Street.

Both piers use aboveground piping secured to the piers, which begin at the product unloading arms and run along the pier landward until they go underground. Attachment structures for each pier and pier section differ in design, partially depending on whether the pipe is secured on top of or below decking. Piping on the piers when full would not be buoyant under static force conditions, but buoyancy coupled with wave action could add additional stress to the structures securing the pipelines in place. Overtopping of all pier pipelines only occurs as a result of wave action, not the static SWEL, thus buoyancy forces will be coupled with wave action forces, causing cyclic loading that could lead to fatigue failure of structural attachments.

When the pier piping is empty and overtopped by waves, buoyancy forces exert stress on the attachment structures, regardless of wave loading forces. Initial estimates indicate that the pipes are adequately secured to prevent failure due to buoyancy under static conditions, however a detailed structural review of attachment structures' design and integrity would be required to determine actual stress conditions. A full assessment requires coastal modeling that includes calculating wave loads, which would be part of a coastal engineering analysis.

Overall, when considering the risk score for these pipes due to buoyancy alone, the risk of pipe failure for full pipe is low because the likelihood is low. The risk of pipe failure for an empty pipe is low because with no product in the pipeline, the severity of impact from a failure is low. However, when completing the risk assessment, the worst-case case scenario was considered where the pipe was empty and thus potentially buoyant, but not cleaned, thus potentially leading to a release off site. Additional structural engineering will be necessary to determine whether the design of pipe supports and related attachment structures are rated to overcome buoyancy.

6.3.4 Future Impacts from Collision

When considering wave action impacts and the structural components of the piers, risks of objects colliding with PPLC assets change under differing SLR scenarios, but the risks do not increase linearly with increases in SLR. Some risks to collision are higher when the water elevations are lower, such that an object from off-site can move under the pier, damaging structures, supports, and pipelines. The risks of this occurring may actually decrease under SLR. With higher SLR, there is a higher likelihood of objects impact the sides of the piers, or objects on top of the piers.

The risk ranking for the collision risk pathway was 6 or less for assets other than the 36" piping at Pier 2, which is appropriately ranked as a 9 and thus a priority for additional review before other collision considerations.

As discussed above, some PPLC assets are subject to wave action and thus can be mobilized and impact other PPLC assets. More substantial objects that are more likely to cause damage would need to come from off-site, such as from the neighboring marina.

The risk of collision for some assets within the VE zone is dependent on the wave height. For example, while wave action may overtop the berthing pier, making a determination as to whether assets located on top of the berthing pier could be subject to collision would require knowledge of whether the wave height is high enough to move large objects with draft over the top of the decking. To make a conclusive determination as to the total risk here in 2055, modeling is required to assess changes to the wave height as a result of SLR.

6.3.5 Future Impacts from Mobilization of Contaminants

Conceptual models for the possibility of contaminant mobilization were provided in Section 5.4. PPLC has mitigated all known releases on its properties, reporting to and working with the DEP to achieve remediated status.

It is possible that past release or future releases could leave residual contamination in place. Mechanisms do exist for these contaminants to mobilize under SLR, however the risk of negative impacts to downstream receptors is low.

The tank farms are not vulnerable to SLR and thus there is no risk of mobilization of contaminants due to SLR under either the intermediate or high SLR scenarios.

7.0 ADAPTATION & MITIGATION

Adaptation and mitigation measures are selected based on the outputs of the data analysis and risk scoring, including first year-to-impact assessments for the various assets. All analyses, including risk scores, have been based on an assessment of worst case conditions for the projected SLR in 2055 under the high scenario.

In consideration of operational exposures, it was determined that no operational risk warranted direct mitigation absent of environmental or public health and safety impacts. PPLC has extensive pre-storm planning measures in place to secure operations, and is functionally able to take operations offline as needed to deal with extreme precipitation or storm events. Taking systems offline has been and will continue to be the primary mitigation effort for operational concerns. Projected SLR does not change this approach.

With regards to environmental or public health and safety impacts, there are no immediate (five year) adaptation or mitigation measures required to address SLR under either the intermediate or high SLR scenarios. Certain SWEL impacts to specific assets are projected to first occur by 2030, however the risks from SLR are lower than pre-existing risks from a 100-year storm event that is not driven by SLR or new design storm precipitation extremes.

The existing risks, regardless of SLR, are inherent in coastal marine operations. These risks are generally well addressed by PPLC's existing pre-storm planning and emergency operation plans. However, the risk assessment conducted here identifies certain assets as needing additional review to determine whether the structural conditions need modification in order maintain integrity under the worst-case storms, both currently as well as in the future when considering SLR. This review should include coastal modeling to determine the areal extent and vertical height of waves in the VE zone, calculation of wave loads, and a structural engineering assessment of equipment that could be damaged under these conditions. In particular, the review should include the assets ranked as 9 as listed in Table 7, including the pipelines, electrical systems, and fire suppression systems on Pier 2. The Pier 2 pipeline should be prioritized above other at-risk assets for a structural engineering evaluation due to the current FIRM mapping within the VE zone. While Pier 1 and pipelines are currently at similar risk, the assets are out of service and additional analysis is not warranted until a PPLC intends to place the system back in service.

The output of this review should inform whether PPLC needs to take action to harden its assets or use alternative designs in order to protect against storms and SLR.

Other asset-specific strategies, as related to risk assessment outputs, were discussed in the risk assessment process. These include:

- Coordinate with MSRC to ensure they are responsible for and have plans to move barges, vessels, and staged equipment as needed.
- Ensure existing pre-storm planning documents and Facility Response Plans consider relevant risk outputs from this NHRA, such as storage of equipment on piers. This also includes ensuring Pier 2 block valves are adequately considered in pre-storm planning and long-term site planning, as wave crests in 2055 are projected to be 6' above ground elevation at this location, making them inaccessible.
- More explicit planning to utilize redundant, back-up, or alternative systems to maintain operational continuity, if necessary, as applicable to the relevant risk assessment outputs.

7.1 Prioritization, Schedules, and Costs

General timelines and recommendations are listed below. These are summarized with estimated costs in Table 8. The exact scope and detail of work for each project should be determined in consultation with the firm providing the work.

Within the next permit cycle (five years) it is recommended that PPLC:

- Conduct coastal modeling to determine wave set-up, wave run-up, wave loadings under the High SLR scenario. This should include determinations of areal extent and wave crest height based on current VE zone designation, adjusted for SLR.
- Conduct a structural engineering assessment of Pier 2, including pipelines and pipeline structural supports.
- Conduct a review of equipment located on the Pier 2 approach pier to determine whether additional protection measures (such as, but not limited to, fixing assets to their location, elevating assets, or providing barriers around assets) are warranted or possible.

Within the next 10 years, it is recommended that PPLC:

- Implement outputs from the above reviews if warranted and recommended by the engineering review, and if the next iteration of this NHRA with updated SLR projections again identifies these assets as being at risk.

On a continuing basis, it is recommended that PPLC:

- Monitor and document wave run-up and erosion at the coast for both Pier 1 and Pier 2. If erosion is occurring, regulatory requirements for permitting may require the period of erosion to be documented in order to secure permitting for hardscaped erosion control measures.

On an as-needed basis, it is recommended that PPLC:

- Conduct a structural engineering review of Pier 1 pipelines as well as the Pier 1 sampling building and sampling lines prior to being placed back in service.
