There is no excuse for delaying implementation of the advanced clean car standards. The state is acting in accordance with emissions standards which really requires immediate action to curb GHG emission There is not any reasonable explanation for such a delay. I've been driving a 0 emissions car now for almost 10 years. I'm shocked at the slow efforts and turn over of this Industry that should have had 0 emissions cars already covering our road by now . This delay is purely a political move and another attempt to delay the inevitable. We need clean vehicles now. Not cheaper gasoline
