To whom it may concern:

I am writing this email to comment on the California rule that the State of Maine wants to impose on the the vehicles of our taxpayers.

This is an unfair rule from another state that will cost more in the long run for the people of the State of Maine. To force electric cars and pickups down our throats is particularly unfair when you can't even ensure that there enough charging stations to charge those being driven now or that the current technology will get a person from Bangor to Enfield without needing to stop on the way to recharge.

This kind of logic may work for the movie stars and Elon Zuckerbergs of California but people here in Maine have to work for a living and need time tested and road worthy cars and trucks for it.
