Dear Air Quality Bureau Cayting,

The electrification of vehicles should be a natural progression and not mandated. This will only add unnecessary costs to a state environment that already makes it difficult operate a business. This will just be one more reason for business not to invest in Maine. We are not California. California is the 9th largest economy in the world, they can throw their weight around. Maine is at the bottom of the barrel and we have no business putting out mandates like this. Businesses don't have to be in Maine.

Sincerely,

James Lynch
