Dear Air Quality Bureau Cayting,

I'd like to recommend to the BEP, not to enact California zev rules and regulations, for reasons stated by other AGC members and in my mind, when the Free market place plays out hydrogen powered vehicles will be the vehicles of choice.

When hydrogen combusts a major byproduct is water.
When water is electrolysed the by product's are hydrogen and oxygen.

I'm hoping for vehicles that function on the reaction of water electrolysis where the oxygen is released into the atmosphere Rather than the by-products of an ice engine.

Which hopefully in the end will be adopted in California along with the other 48.

Sincerely,

Terry Ross
