Overview

The following report describes those who were consulted during the 2018 Community Engagement process for the Maine Shared Community Health Needs Assessment (Maine Shared CHNA). The first section includes a summary of each county's community events and numbers reached. These tables are then followed by a listing of organizations consulted in that process.

The last section is a summary of effort for the Key Informant Interviews (KIIs). KIIs were performed in order to ensure our process included input from Maine's vulnerable populations. The results from these interviews are woven into the analysis for each county's Community Health Needs Assessment (CHNA) reports and can be considered when listing those consulted in the CHNA process.

By the numbers:

- 41 forums or community events (3 were simultaneously webcast)
- 1848 people provided input on health issues
- 42 Key Informant Interviews were conducted
 - 31 by JSI and
 - 11 by local coalition members

Key Informant Interviews

Key Informant Interviews	Statewide	Independently facilitated	12/11/2018-1/31/2019	11
Key Informant Interviews	Statewide	JSI facilitated	12/11/2018-2/1/2019	31

Ten categories of medically underserved and vulnerable populations were chosen to ensure input from groups otherwise often under-represented in this type of process. Interview subjects were chosen to provide statewide input with a preference given to those who had lived experience and/or worked for an organization that focused on providing services or advocacy. This included:

- Veterans
- Tribal communities
- Adults ages 65 and older who are isolated or have multiple chronic conditions
- Non-English speakers, undocumented individuals, immigrants, and refugees
- Deaf individuals and those with other physical disabilities
- Adolescents/youth
- LGBTQ
- People with mental health conditions and developmental disabilities
- Rural individuals
- Individuals in substance use disorder recovery/substance use disorder prevention and treatment professionals

The following is a list of organizations who participated in Key Informant Interviews conducted both by JSI and local planning committee members. No Tribal representatives were able to be interviewed. In the future we hope to include this important group of in the Maine Shared CHNA process.
