

MaineCare's Behavioral Health Homes

Managing behavioral and physical health needs

Is a Behavioral Health Home right for you or for your child?

- Would you like more help to improve your or your child's complete behavioral and physical health?
- Do you worry about how your or your child's behavioral and physical health affect each other?
- Would you share your or your child's health information with primary care and behavioral health providers so they can work together to help reach improved health?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, MaineCare's Behavioral Health Home program may help.

This service combines community support and case management with primary care. Behavioral health providers partner with primary care providers to better manage your care.

MaineCare's Behavioral Health Homes:

Are voluntary - you join only if you want to.

Offer a team approach where care coordination, case management, peer and family supports, and other services work with primary care.

Can take the place of the community support services you receive now.

May already be offered by your or your child's community support provider. Talk to your case manager or community support provider to find out more.
