- Make up some new verses, such as “goat wearing a coat” or “hen using a pen.” (Make flannel pieces beforehand for any new verses you add.)
- As you sing, linger on the first sound of the second word of a rhyming pair (e.g., grow/go; snake/cake) so children can chime in on these words..

Dazzling Diggers

Procedure:

- Say something like “ We have a new book today, it is all about how diggers work.” Show the cover of Dazzling Diggers, underline as reading the title, author and illustrator.
- Then read the book , keeping the natural rhythm of the verse.
- When you have finished, go back to some of the pages and read them again. After reading each one, say something like, “I noticed two words that have same last part.. -- words that rhyme; ground and pound—they both have ‘ound’ as their last part.”
- Read a couple more pages with rhyming word pairs (e.g. lift/shift, haul/tall and invite children to tell you which words rhyme

Come On and Join in to the Game:

Interesting-Sounding Words [And The Little Red Hen (Makes a Pizza):

Procedure:

- As you hold up the book say, “Next we are going to talk about some of the interesting – sounding words in the book The Little Red Hen (Makes a Pizza).”
- You might say, “Mozzarella is an interesting-sounding word. Say it with me. Mozz – a- rell-a. Mozzarella is a long word, isn’t it? Mozzarella is a kind of cheese you put on a pizza. Mozzarella starts with the sound /m/ and we write /m/ with the letter M.”
- Write M on the easel so children can see it, labeling our actions in making it.
- Then say, “Another interesting word is pepperoni. Let’s say it together. Pepp –er- o-ni. Pepperoni starts with /p/, and we write that sound with the letter P. Write P so children can see it. Describe your actions (“a long vertical line, and then a line that starts at the top of the long vertical line, goes out, and then curves back to the middle....”).
- You might say, “A third word that sounds very interesting is delicatessen. Let’s say that one together, too: Del – i - ca- tess-en. The Little Red Hen bought her mozzarella cheese and her pepperoni at a delicatessen, which is a kind of store. Delicatessen starts with /d/, and we use the letter D to write that sound.” Write D, so children can see it. Describe your actions as you write the letter.
- Comment that some words are really fun to say, and they’ll talk about some more interesting – sounding words on another day.
 - The interesting- sounding words from The Little Red Hen can easily be worked into a lunch time conversation. This will give children more practice saying the words and help them to more fully understand their meaning.

Unit 2, Week 2, Day 2

Unit 2, Week 2, Day 2

Materials: Poetry poster, flannel board and pieces for “Five Green and Speckled Frogs”, A Letter to Amy

Five Green and Speckled Frogs:

Procedure:

- Say, “Today we are going to start by singing “Five Green and Speckled Frogs.”
- As you place the log on the flannel board say, “I am going to put the brown speckled log right here at the top of the flannel board. Here is the cool blue pool that I will put beside the log. Now count the frogs with me so we are sure they are all here today”. Count the frogs with the children as you place them on the log.
- Sing the song as usual.

Three Little Monkeys:

Procedure:

- Say, “Those five green and speckled frogs seem to have fun together in the cool pool, don’t they? Now I am going to teach you a new poem about three little monkeys who have fun together, too. The name of this poem is “Three Little Monkeys.”
- Hold up one hand with three fingers extended, with thumb and little finger clasped over one another, beneath them. Show children how to move their hand back and forth.
- Chant the poem (Do not show Poetry poster yet), and as you chant, fold back one of the three fingers with each verse. Go slowly so children can do the poem and motions with you.
- After reciting the monkey poem, show children the poetry poster. Read the title as you underline the words with your finger. Talk about the illustration: “Here are the three little monkeys swinging on the tree branches—1, 2, 3 (point to and count them), and here’s the crocodile beneath them in the water. Suggest that maybe the monkeys should find another place to play!!”

Guess What Word I am Saying (And A Letter To Amy):

Procedure:

- Hold up the book A Letter to Amy. Say, “We have been reading the story, A Letter to Amy, and now I am going to say some words from the story in an interesting way, a way that is not quite right. I want you to say the words the right way. If I say p – (pause) –arty, p- (pause) –arty, you would say party.” Give one more example if you think children need it to understand the task. (In this task, you provide onset-rime parts of words or the onset and the rest of the word, in a two syllable word.)
- Say some words in the “interesting way” and give children time to repeat the word the right way. You can use the following words:
 - Mail : m – (pause) –ail
 - Rain : r – (pause) –ain

- Willie : w- (pause) – illie
- Wind : w- (pause) –ind
- After you say the word parts once, repeat them a second time, before children say the word the right way.
- After children guess the word, use the word in a sentence to convey its meaning.
- An example of this would be: “Yes, party is the word I was saying. Peter invited Amy to his birthday party.”

Head and Shoulders, Knees and Toes:

Procedure:

- Say something like, “We’ve been sitting for a while so let’s stand up and move our body from head to toe! We are going to sing, “Head and Shoulders, Knees and Toes.”
- Sing the song and do the motions as usual. Tell children that you will sing the song a second time, this time humming the tune and touching the body parts without saying the words out loud.

Interesting – Sounding Words (And A Letter To Amy):

Procedure:

- Show children the book A Letter to Amy. Say, “In this story, A letter to Amy, there are some interesting – sounding words that I would like to talk about. Envelope is an interesting word to say because it has three different parts. Let’s say it together, en – ve- lope. Now clap out the parts with me.”
- Say, “Hopscotch is another interesting word to say. How many parts does it have? Let’s say it, and then clap it. Yes, It has two parts, doesn’t it? Hop – scotch.”
- Say, “What about the word Saturday? Let’s say and then clap it: Sat – ur – day. It has three parts, doesn’t it? Saturday starts with /s/ and we use the letter “S” to write /s/. The letter “S” looks like this.” Write S on the easel, so children can see it.”
- Invite children to say other long words and divide them. If a child provides a short word, compare it to a long word already discussed. For example, Tiger is not as long as crocodile, but it is still an interesting word to say.

Unit 2, Week 2, Day 3

Unit 2 Week 2, Day 3

Materials: Poetry posters, flannel board and pieces for “Old MacDonald Had a Farm” and “BINGO”, Dazzling Diggers, alphabet cards, children’s name cards

Old Mac Donald Had a Farm:

Procedure:

- Today we are going to start with the song “Old MacDonald had a farm.”
- Say, “First I am going to put the farmer, Old MacDonald, right here at the top of the flannel board. Then I’ll put the barn beside him. I am going to put all the animals we will sing about at the bottom of the flannel board and then move them one by one, up here to the top of the flannel board, as we sing about them. Let’s sing about the cow first and then do the pig second. Sing song as usual using all the animals you placed on the flannel board.”
- When you are finished singing, ask children to say the animals’ names with you as you remove them from the flannel board.

BINGO:

Procedure:

- Say, “Now we are going to sing the song about the other farmer who had a dog named Bingo.”
- Say, “First, I am going to put the letters we use to write Bingo’s name on the flannel board and I want you to say the letter names with me. First we need the letter B (place B on the board). The second letter we need is I. I will put it beside the B. The third letter we need for Bingo’s name is N. Now we have B- I- N (point to each letter as you say it).” Continue this way until all letters in Bingo are on the board.

Sing the song as usual, removing one letter for each verse and replacing each letter with a clap.

Mix A Pancake:

Procedure:

- Tell children, “We are going to learn a new poem today called “Mix a Pancake.” Recite the poem and model appropriate motions.
- Show children the poetry poster and point out parts of the illustrations that match the words in the verses. For example: Here’s the bowl of pancake batter with the spoon for mixing. And here’s the skillet—a kind of pan-- that we fry the pancakes in. This is a giant pancake—a very, very big pancake-- up here that the cook has just tossed up and flipped!
 - If possible, show a skillet, spoon, big bowl and pancake turner to the children.

Dazzling Diggers

Procedure:

- Show the cover of the book and ask children if they remember the title. Point to the D in Dazzling and say /d/ as a clue, then point to the D in Diggers and say /D/ as a second clue. Confirm their answer by reading the title as you underline it with your finger. Also read the name of the author and illustrator.

- Read the book, keeping the natural rhythm of the verse. Point to the pictures to help children link names to objects.
- Go back to a few pages and comment on rhyming words. For example: The words big and dig have the same last part—'ig'. They rhyme. Some words do not have the same last part-- like crash and break. They don't rhyme. But big and dig rhyme, and so do break and shake. As you say the word pairs that rhyme, segment the rime portion of the word.
- Go to a few more pages with rhymes and read them. This time, ask children if they can think of any words you have just read that rhyme --- words that have the same last part.
- If children do not respond quickly, read the verse again, lingering a bit on the rhyming words to emphasize them. If children still do not respond, say the words one after the other. For example, track and jack have the same last part—'ack'-- They rhyme

If Your Name Starts With [Name a letter], Clap Just Once:

Procedure:

- Tell children, "We are going to play the name game with letters again. This time, though, you will clap your hands once, instead of raising your hand or touching your ear, when I hold up the first letter in your name. I might tell you to clap more than once, so you need to really listen carefully!"
- Play one round of the game. Sometimes, instead of saying clap one time, say clap two times or three times. Most children will probably know the first letter in their names, but have the name cards ready in case a child does not respond when his/her first letter is shown. Hold up the name card and point to the first letter, naming it and telling the child that he/she may clap hands.

Unit 2, Week 2, Day 4

Unit 2, Week 2, Day 4

Materials: Flannel pieces for "Five Green and Speckled Frogs" and flannel letters P, E, T, E, R, HUSH!, Alphabet cards, children's name cards, A Letter To Amy, The Little Red Hen (Makes A Pizza), Picture Cards: pizza, bowl, saxophone

- Sing the song as usual.

Story-Character Bingo (And A Letter to Amy):

Procedure:

- Tell children you are going to sing "BINGO," but instead of singing about the farmer's dog, you are going to sing about the boy who is the main character in A Letter to Amy." (Show book cover and point to Peter's picture) See if children can guess who they are going to sing about.
- Show a card with Peter's name written on it. Use the card as a guide to help select the flannel letters to spell Peter. Point to the P in Peter and say, Peter begins with P, so the first letter we need is a P. Here it is (Place it on the board).
- Then point to the second letter in Peter and ask, "What is the second letter in Peter? Yes, it is an E. I'll put the E right beside the P, now I have P-E. (point to each letter as you name it) What is the third letter in Peter's name? Yes, it is a T. I'll put the T beside the E. Now we have P - E - T." Proceed the same way with the remaining letters.
- Tell children the song has the same tune as BINGO, but different words. It goes like this: There was a boy who mailed a letter and Peter was his name-o. P-E-T-E-R (3 times), and Peter was his name-o.
- Then sing the song substituting a clap for the missing letter, just as you do in Bingo. (It is helpful to have the letters for Peter on squares of felt. Put the letters on one side of the square and the clapping hands on the other side.

HUSH!:

Procedure:

- Show the cover of HUSH! and say, "We have read this story before, so you will remember the title is ---" (pause to give children a chance to respond). Confirm their answer by saying the title in a whisper and putting your finger to your own mouth.
- Point out the mother doing the same thing on the cover of the book.
- Ask children why the mother is whispering the word. Ask children the meaning of the word hush.

- Read HUSH!, lingering on the first sound in sleeping and nearby every time so children can chime in.
- Comment as you read about the whereabouts and actions of the baby.
- After you have read the story, go back through it and comment on some of the words. As you explain a word's meaning, point to the appropriate picture. Examples: for a "lean black cat", you might say, lean means the cat is skinny, not fat. For, "don't come leaping," you might say, This means stop making those big jumps.

I'm Thinking Of ____ Clue Game [And The Little Red Hen (Makes A Pizza)]:

Procedure:

- Show children the cover of The Little Red Hen (Makes A Pizza) and tell them they are going to play a clue game with words from the story. Remind them to listen to all the clues, and to think for a bit, before raising their hands when they have an idea.
- For pizza, use these clues: "This is a kind of food. This food has a crust and toppings." If children do not guess from those clues, give this one: "This is the kind of food the Little Red Hen made". If children need another clue, say, "When we say this word, we hear two parts (clap 2 times)".
- For bowl, use these clues: These are round dishes that are open on the top and used to hold food or liquids. The Little Red Hen mixed her dough ingredients in one of these. If children do not guess with those clues, and need another one, use this one: The word I am thinking of begins with /b/.
- For money, use these clues: This is what people use to pay for things that they buy. The Little Red Hen used this when she went to the store to buy the things that she needed. If children don't guess with those clues and need another one, use this one: The word I am thinking of begins with /m/.
- For cheese, use these clues: This is a food that is made from milk products. The Little Red Hen used the mozzarella kind of this food on her pizza. The word I am thinking of begins with /m/.

- Recite the poem.

Five Juicy Apples:

Procedure:

- Show children the poem. Read the title and underline it with your finger. Point out the five juicy apples in the illustration. Ask children to count with you.
- Linger on the first sound of the second word in a rhyming pair (e.g., store/four, be/three, through/ two, pair/there) so children can chime in, as you recite the poem together.
- If there is not enough time for everyone to have their name used, tell children the rest will have a turn next time.
- Make a list of children’s names ahead of time and cross off names as you use them in the poem.

- You also might say, Some words in the poem do not begin with the same sound. Monkey and crocodile don’t begin with the same sound but crocodile and catch start with the same sound.”
