Course Description:

Strangulation has been identified as one of the most lethal forms of domestic violence assault. In recognition of this, Maine's Aggravated Assault Statute was amended in 2012 to make strangulation a Class B felony. This informative four-hour program will discuss Maine Law, case studies involving domestic violence and sexual assault, the A&P of what occurs during a near fatal strangulation, and the importance of thorough response and documentation by all first responders.

Course presenters:

Jen Annis, EPIC Coordinator, Through These Doors

Shira Burns, ADA, York County

Erin Curry, DV Specialist, South Portland Police Department

Emily Hilton, RN, BSN, SAFE, University of New England

What prior attendees have said about this course:

"Very valuable training; I feel way more prepared to deal with these cases; The whole thing was awesome; Riveting; Great information for anyone involved in DV crimes and investigation"
