MOTION: A patient complains that the physician did not provide appropriate medical care unless he traveled 100 miles and that there were mistakes made when placing and removing a catheter. MOTION: A patient complains that the physician assistant did not perform the correct procedure and was dismissive and abrupt. She also alleges he never ordered x-rays and told her that the treatment was based on her pain not films. She also rebutted the amount of time that he stated he spent with her and stated that she was not given a choice of the procedure. The physician assistant responded that he is sorry that she had a negative experience and did not have significant pain relief. In addition, he stated that the procedure was done under fluoroscopy, and the patient had improvement of pain post procedure. He doesn't believe that he was dismissive of her and patients see him because they are in pain. Review of the records revealed that the patient received reasonable care.

MOTION: A patient's mother complains that the physician inappropriately, unnecessarily and forcefully touched her daughter. The mother also had concerns that staff were laughing at them and that the physician harassed her with multiple phone calls. The physician responded that he is very sorry that they had a bad experience and that routinely he will have to make a light touch to the face to redirect a child's focus. He also states that he does not recall staff laughing nor would his staff be unprofessional like that. He goes on to say that he was unaware of her dissatisfaction until the call to talk to the office manager and thought it was most appropriate for him to follow up. In retrospect the licensee recognizes that he should have left a message, so they would know why he was calling. Review of the records revealed that the patient received reasonable care.

MOTION: A patient's mother complains that the physician lied about her son's symptoms and the medication. The mother also states that the physician stated that her son "would be unsuccessful in life". The physician responded that she understands that parents have a lot of anxiety related to these diagnoses. The physician also states that given the complex family circumstances and her involvement in legal matters concerning the welfare of children likely created a challenging dynamic. It was also discussed that the symptoms that he was having only happen less than 5% of the time in children and does discuss side effects at every visit. The physician also states that she would never say that the complainant's son "would be unsuccessful in life" but would say the complainant's son's long-term "life outcomes". Review of the records revealed that the patient received reasonable care.

MOTION: A refill request the patient made for a controlled substance medication was in the patient's view not handled in a timely fashion causing the patient to be without medication for a number of days. Licensee states that the delay was largely due to a "computer hack" experienced by the licensee's employer resulting in a lack of access to the medical record. Complainant ultimately asked to have the complaint withdrawn after the situation had been resolved.

MOTION: The patient underwent donor transplant nephrectomy performed by the licensee. The patient suffered a rare complication related to the surgery (chylous ascites) which required multiple interventions and prolonged hospitalization. In addition, he developed choledocholithiasis possibly because of the treatment for chylous ascites. The patient alleges that the complications he suffered were a direct result of clinical incompetence and unprofessional behavior. He also makes other allegations related to informed consent and involvement of surgical residents in his care. Review of the records confirms that the patient suffered troubling postoperative complications but does not support the allegations.

MOTION: The patient underwent donor transplant nephrectomy performed by another licensee who is subject of a related complaint. The patient suffered a rare complication related to the surgery (chylous ascites). In addition, he developed choledocholithiasis possibly because of the treatment for chylous ascites. The patient alleges that the complications he suffered were a direct result of clinical incompetence and were avoidable. He alleges that this licensee was unprofessional when involved in his care on-call. Review of the records does not support the allegations.

MOTION: The adult daughter of a patient reports that her mother complained to her that the licensee had been “verbally abusive to her, had made accusations about her character, was impatient, blew up ...” The licensee responds that the patient’s daughter had never accompanied her to any visits and that her accusations are untrue. Review of the records reveals that the patient was diagnosed with cerebral amyloid angiopathy in February 2024 and that the patient’s health and memory declined significantly in February 2025 after being admitted for influenza. Records show that the licensee noticed this significant change, was taking it seriously, and had a plan for additional work-up and follow-up. Review of the notes illustrate appropriate care was provided.

Mr. Flaherty moved to investigate further and request that the licensee complete a CME course approved by Dr. Fanjoy regarding pediatric eye treatment in the emergency room setting and report to the Board what he gained from the course. Dr. Nesin seconded the motion.

The physician responded that he informed her that he would have to check and see if she was in labor by doing a sterile exam which includes PH check and cervical check. Review of the records revealed that the patient received reasonable care.

MOTION: The complainant alleged failure to provide adequate medical care for symptoms suggestive of a stroke or intoxication, including fatigue, difficulty in speech, dropping items, poor balance, and "acting intoxicated." The complainant states she was denied appropriate medical care by staff who believed she was faking symptoms, no field screening was done, and medications were discontinued or changed inappropriately. She accuses the nurse of intoxication and claims the facility's medical care is substandard.

The licensee responded that he does not know the patient, has not seen, conversed with, or provided care to her. He believes another inmate wrote the complaint and that she may have been intoxicated from homemade alcohol. He asserts no personal involvement and hopes she has recovered.

Review of records and relevant standards indicates the evaluating providers met the standard of care, with appropriate assessment and management, and no clear evidence of direct misconduct by the licensee.

49. CR25-141

The licensee states he has not seen, been involved with, or provided care to the patient since her return from the psychiatric hospital. He notes the patient has refused all medical and psychiatric help offered. Review of records and relevant standards indicates no clear evidence of direct misconduct by the licensee.
