				Established in 2008 by dog lovers, the Pedigree Foundation supports organizations working to save the lives of dogs that otherwise would be lost. To advance this mission, the foundation welcomes applications for its 2021 grants program. Through the program, grants will be awarded to dog shelters and rescues with programs that support dog adoptions. Funding may be used to help improve the quality of care of dogs while in shelter or rescue, increase adoption rates within shelters or rescues, and/or support new initiatives in the animal welfare community. In 2021, priority will be placed on programs designed to support transport, matching, and foster programs. The foundation welcomes applications for the following awards: Dogs Rule Grants — Grants of up to $100,000 over two years will be awarded in support of a new innovative initiative focused on increasing adoptions rates and with a requirement to deliver a manual or toolkit by the end of the program to share with the animal welfare community. Program Development — Grants of up to $15,000 will be awarded in support of program(s) or project(s) to increase adoption rates, with priority given to transport, matching, and foster programs. COVID-19 Relief — Grants of up to $2,500 will be awarded on a rolling basis, with the first group of grants to be awarded in April and May. Relief grants will be reviewed upon receipt, so shelter and rescues in need should apply as soon as possible. 				increase in the number of hungry Americans and the loss of tens of thousands of restaurants and millions of restaurant jobs. The FEED Act would provide FEMA funds at the state and local level to support restaurant/non-profit partnerships as they work to provide fresh meals for communities in need.
				Historically, FEMA funds up to 75% of responses to disasters, while cities and states are on the hook for the other 25%. This can get expensive, especially in regions that are especially hard-hit by natural and other disasters – and it means that any large-scale restaurant response program would get prohibitively pricey for cities to sustain.
				The FEED Act has passed in the House several times, but has not yet been made into law. In early 2021, though, President Biden issued a Presidential Order with a narrower scope than the FEED Act: it raised FEMA's financial responsibility for emergency protective measures from 75% to 100% through September 2021, potentially allowing cities and states to get fully reimbursed for restaurant programs addressing food security challenges.
				Introduced in House (05/05/2020):
				FEMA Empowering Essential Deliveries Act or the FEED Act
				This bill authorizes the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to approve state, local, and Indian tribal government plans to partner with small and mid-size restaurants and nonprofit organizations to provide nutritious meals to individuals in need.
				Specifically, during the period following the President's emergency declaration of March 13, 2020, and under any subsequent major disaster declaration that supersedes it, FEMA may approve plans from state, local, and Indian tribal governments that (1) establish contracts with small and mid-sized restaurants and nonprofits, including faith-based organizations and soup kitchens, to prepare healthy meals for people in need; and (2) provide for partnerships with nonprofit organizations to purchase directly from food producers and farmers.
				FEMA shall waive federal matching requirements under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act during such period.

The Charles Lafitte Foundation (CLF) supports organizations working in four main areas: education, children's advocacy, medical research & issues, and the arts. The Charles Lafitte Foundation is the family foundation for Jeffrey and Suzanne Citron. Since 1999, CLF has given to more than 200 organizations and granted more than $11 million in support. CLF supports innovative and effective ways of helping people help themselves and others around them to achieve healthy, satisfying and enriched lives. The Foundation supports organizations working in four main areas: education, children's advocacy, medical research & issues, and the arts. • EDUCATION: The mission of the Education Program is to encourage the attainment of knowledge and skills and the practice of responsible citizenship through access to effective learning opportunities. The foundation is committed to improving the "quality of life" of children by supporting programs which encourage children to reach their fullest potential. The best chance a child has to reach that goal is to be provided with sufficient education, health care, housing, and love. As one of the primary outlets of human creativity, art is a vital resource in developing and maintaining healthy communities. As school budgets are often short on cultural opportunities, the foundation will favor educational programs that encourage students to release their creativity, inspire them to learn, and empower them with achievement. • CHILDREN'S ADVOCACY: Bettering the lives of children is central to CLF's purpose. Ultimately, the goal is to help children reach their fullest	[Health and Social Services, Natural and Cultural Resources]	Deadline not identified.

The foundation sponsors programs that mitigate the hardship that confronts and impedes too many children. This means targeting issues like child abuse, adequate foster housing, literacy and hunger, Improving children's education is essential to achieving positive outcomes for children and youth of all ages. It also creates communities where children and families can thrive. After-school programs enhance and strengthen the educational experience, helping to keep children in school. gain self-esteem and thrive. We also encourage children to be their own advocates. Check out the Charles Lafitte Foundation Kid's Corner. MEDICAL RESEARCH AND INITIATIVES: CLF supports and encourages health research and education, leading to better healthcare, disease prevention, and healthier lives. Through education, public awareness of basic wellness issues can be illuminated and healthy lifestyles and habits encouraged. The foundation looks for efforts that stress quality of life, including disease prevention, and often focuses on specific groups with serious and neglected problems. Through research, medical advancements are explored and tested, resulting in the therapies and treatments of tomorrow. Other medical initiatives. such as long-term patient housing and palliative care, require serious attention and solutions. THE ARTS: Exposure to the arts is vital to fostering and sustaining healthy communities. With diminished civic support and declining patronage, most arts organizations are increasingly challenged. Innovation, creativity, initiative, and risk taking are intrinsic to artistic expression, inspiring audiences to dig deeper into their personal potential and freeing minds to contemplate dreams. CLF goals for arts funding include: (1) cultivating new talent: (2) supporting established artists, (3) providing educational programs that encourage children's creativity; (4) furthering equal access to the arts; and (5) establishing therapeutic arts programs. 			While each disaster creates its own unique circumstances and special needs, Salvation Army disaster relief efforts focus on seven core services. These services may be modified based on the magnitude of the disaster and adapted to meet the specific needs of individual survivors. 1. Training: The first step in being ready to respond to an emergency is training. In partnership with other agencies, The Salvation designed to help individuals and communities prepare for emergency events and become trained disaster volunteers. 2. Food Service: When disaster strikes, one of the first signs that help is on feeding unit, offering meals, snacks and drinks to rescue workers and survivors.

				3. Emotional and Spiritual Care:
				Motivated by Christian faith, The Salvation Army deploys specially trained individuals to offer emotional and spiritual care to rescue workers and disaster survivors.
				Emergency Communications: The Salvation Army Team Emergency Radio Network (SATERN) includes a worldwide network of volunteer amateur radio operators and other communications specialists, who may be mobilized to transmit emergency information during a disaster event.
				5. Disaster Social Services: After a family has lost everything in a disaster, The Salvation Army is there to provide emergency assistance to help meet survivors' most urgent needs for food, clothing, shelter and medical services.
				6. Donations Management:
				The Salvation Army is one of the nation's leaders in responsibly collecting, sorting and distributing donated goods. The Salvation Army encourages cash donations as the best and most flexible way to help and solicits only those in-kind donations which can be effectively received and efficiently distributed.

	sheltering - before, during, and after disasters - that require the use of limited specialized resources to address. To help mitigate those issues – personal and inclusive plans at all levels should be developed to help maintain the health, safety and independence of the whole community. Older adults and people with disabilities have unique and special needs to consider, however. The ACL Emergency Preparedness page offers best practices and resources that can help. The Administration for Community Living (ACL) website offers resources that can help older adults and people with disabilities learn how to prepare for emergencies. You can also find resources for families, caregivers, service providers, and communities.
	EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS FOR OLDER ADULTS AND PEOPLE WITH DISABILITIES Disasters, man-made or natural, can happen at anytime, anywhere, and vary in magnitude. Older adults and people with disabilities often have unique needs during a crisis. For example, approximately half of those over age 65 have two or more chronic health problems, such as heart disease, diabetes, or Alzheimer's disease. These conditions increase a person's vulnerability during periods of time without food, water, shelter, and adequate rest. People with disabilities may also have a wider variety of functional limitations, sometimes requiring more supports, many of which are often in short supply during a crisis event. It is critical that individuals, service providers, and communities actively engage in emergency planning.
	Each person has a responsibility to prepare for potential crisis and make a plan for how to respond. Providers of long-term services and supports must train staff in all emergency actions (evacuation, lock-down, shelter-in-place). Community leaders and first-responders must be prepared to support the health and safety needs of older adults and people with disabilities, engage these populations in the planning process, and—to the maximum extent possible—provide services and supports in integrated Functional Needs Support Shelters.
	The only way to ensure the well-being of older adults and people with disabilities during a crisis is through a "whole-community" approach to preparedness.
	AGING AND DISABILITY NETWORKS
	The aging and disability networks are made up of local, state, and national organizations and committed advocates working to support older adults and people with disabilities.
	Some organizations focus on a particular type of disability, age group, or type of service, whereas others have a more comprehensive mission.
	There are many similarities in the services and supports older adults and people with disabilities need in order to live independently. Increasingly, the aging and disability

	 tor recoourage re	pport networks are working together at state and local levels, and ACL is frequently asked for help in forging these new collaborative relationships. Together, the communities have a larger voice and are more successful advocates than any of the networks on its own. At the same time, the networks retain the unique elements of their individual missions. PROGRAM AREAS There are issues that affect both people with disabilities and older adults, and we join forces to address them. However, there also are issues that affect only older adults, or only people with disabilities, and ACL continues to develop and manage programs and advocate for the individual populations, as well. The ACL manages a variety of programs (authorized by several statutes), providing assistance on health and wellness, protecting rights and preventing abuse, supporting consumer control, strengthening the networks of community-based organizations, funding research, and much more. ACL's programs include the following: ACL advocates across the federal government for older adults, people with disabilities, and families and caregivers; funds services and supports provided primarily by states and networks of community-based programs; and invests in training, education, research, and innovation. It provides key information on funding and technical assistance opportunities available from the four agencies, as well as examples of how rural communities across the country have put these programs into action. Each agency offers different ways of approaching infrastructure planning and construction, economic development, pollution cleanup, and other issues that are part of achieving sustainable communities. Coordinating and leveraging multiple funding and assistance sources can help communities advance their overall visions and goals. While this guide is not exhaustive and the programs listed may change, it provides a menu of options rural communities and small towns can consider when planning and implementing projects. The guide is organized by agency and then by broad topic areas that are similar across agencies. The program offers competitive funding to small towns and rural and tribal communities to host a multi-day community design workshop. With support from a wide range of design, planning, and creative placemaking professionals, the workshops bring together local residents and local leaders from non-profits, community organizations, and government to develop actionable solutions to the community's pressing design challenges. The community receives additional support through webinars, web-based resources, and customized follow-up support after the workshop. Under the Housing Assistance Council's leadership, the program has expanded to include support for up to 20 additional rural communities. Selected community leaders are invited to gather together for peer learning; training in design, planning, community engagement, and facilitation techniques; and support in navigating funding opportunities to make their vision a reality. Both parts of the CIRD program connect rural residents with resources and ideas for developing locally driven solutions to community design A Request for Applications will be released beginning in 2021, inviting communities to apply to the CIRD program. More than previous Roadmaps, this plan integrates evidence-building priorities for research and data collection from across the Department. This Roadmap represents a renewed process of stakeholder outreach and collaboration to identify the most policy-relevant and timely research questions and evidence-building challenges in the fields of housing and community development. Research is essential to helping the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development achieve its mission to create strong, sustainable, inclusive communities and quality, affordable homes for all. In November, HUD's Office of Policy Development and Research published the Research Roadmap: 2020 Update, HUD's research agenda and plans to support evidence-based policymaking for the Department. The Research Roadmap was developed with input and support from practitioners, advocates, researchers, and policymakers at the federal, state, and local levels. To download the Roadmap: 2020 Update, view past versions of the Roadmap, or connect to other valuable PD&R resources, please visit the Research Roadmap Page on HUDUser.gov. The bipartisan Foundations for Evidence-Based Policymaking Act ("Evidence Act") of 2018 requires federal agencies to launch major new planning efforts: a Learning Agenda aligned with the next Strategic Plan and Annual Evaluation Plans. The Research Roadmap is a living document and will form the foundation for these efforts to help systematically plan research and evidence-building activities. Your feedback on the research questions, themes, and projects proposed in the Research Roadmap: 2020 Update will inform HUD's development of the Learning Agenda and Annual Evaluation Plans for Fiscal Year 2022 and beyond. Each year, Congress appropriates dollars under the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA) for adult, dislocated worker, youth, and basic labor exchange programs. The nation's business-led Workforce Development Boards help set the strategic direction for the programs and services in their respective labor markets. There are approximately 2,400 American Job Centers (One-Stop Centers) that provide a full range of assistance to job seekers. https://www.careeronestop.org/default.aspx The centers offer training referrals, career counseling, job listings, and similar employment-related services. Patrons can take advantage of the Center's "resource rooms" which provide computers, printers, and Internet connectivity to obtain a perspective on availability of jobs and the availability of training opportunities in various sectors of the economy. The current approved WIOA State Strategic Plans can be found at https://www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/osers/rsa/wioa/state-plans/index.html States are submitting their Strategic Plans for 2020 – 2023 during March 2020. After review and approval by the Departments of Labor, Education, Agriculture, Housing and Urban Development, and Health and Human Services, these Plans should be available for public access in July – August 2020.
