Allocated: $0	This annual program supports thirty New Americans — immigrants and children of immigrants — who are pursuing graduate school in the US. Applicants are age 30 or younger and will be enrolled in a full-time graduate program in the 2022-23 academic year. Now in its twenty-third year history, the Paul & Daisy Soros Fellowships for New Americans has built a community of six hundred an eighty-five immigrants and children of immigrants. Every year, the program supports thirty New Americans — immigrants and children of immigrants — who are pursuing graduate school in the United States and have the talent and drive to make a significant contribution to U.S. society, culture, or their academic field. Over its history, the program has supported New Americans with heritage in eighty-nine countries, with India, China, and Mexico the most represented. In addition to the children of immigrants, Green Card holders, and naturalized citizens, the program supports individuals who have received refugee or asylum status, as well as immigrants who have graduated from both high school and college in the US, regardless of status (this includes DACA). Selection criteria is focused on accomplishments that show creativity, originality, and initiative in light of the challenges and opportunities that have been part of the applicant's immigration experience. Eligible applicants must be 30 or younger and planning on being enrolled in a full-time graduate program in the 2022-23 academic year. Paul & Daisy Soros Fellows from the 1998 class, the very first class, today are in mid-career and have pursued careers in medicine, science, law, policy, technology, business, journalism, government, nonprofits, the arts, an academia, or have built their career across several sectors. The application is open to college seniors, students in the early stages of their graduate career, and those in the workforce who are seeking graduate training. The program is open to all types of professional and graduate degrees, including JD, MBA, MPP, MPA, PhD, MM, MArch, MD, and MS. Applicants can apply for a fellowship at the same time that they apply for graduate school or in the first two years	[Community Planning and Capacity Building, Health and Social Services]		Oct-28-2021

That said, the program advises applicants not to wait until the last minute and to give themselves time to review. All eligibility requirements apply to the applicant's status on October 28, 2021.
Oct-15-2021	Non-Governmental Organizations	FY22 WES Mariam Assefa Fund: Employer Practices for Immigrant & Refugee Workers	Funding not identified. Allocated: $0	To catalyze economic inclusion, opportunities, and mobility in support of immigrants and refugees through grantmaking, impact investing, partnerships, and field-building. The WES Mariam Assefa Fund aims to catalyze economic inclusion, opportunities, and mobility in support of immigrants and refugees in the U.S. and Canada. Through grantmaking, impact investing, partnerships, and field-building, the fund supports efforts that work to bring about inclusive economies and ensure that all immigrants and refugees can achieve their goals and thrive. To that end, the fund invites applications for its 2022 grants program through which grants of up to $150,000 over two years will be awarded in support of promising new ideas from organizations working with employers to advance more inclusive practices that improve economic mobility for immigrant and refugee workers. The fund seeks ideas from organizations to directly engage employers to shift internal talent practices to reduce bias in recruitment and hiring, build more inclusive workplaces, and invest in the advancement of incumbent immigrant and refugee talent; pilot demand-driven training and education programs that connect immigrant and refugee job seekers to quality jobs, particularly in high-growth sectors; build coalitions within or across sectors to advance commitments and facilitate knowledge sharing and collective action among employers; and assess the impact of existing employer initiatives focused on immigrant and refugee workers to identify the path forward for those solutions. Organizations must be aligned with at least one of the WES Mariam Assefa Fund's four impact goals: to build the case for solutions that advance equitable economic mobility for immigrants and refugees; deepen the bench of leaders from immigrant communities and communities of color; accelerate the uptake of worker-centered innovations; and grow the movement to foster welcoming, inclusive, and equitable workplaces and communities. The fund is particularly interested in organizations that are led and staffed by people who bring lived experience from immigrant and refugee communities and communities of color and center workers' voices and perspectives in how they design and implement their solutions; and bring a systems-change mindset.	[Community Planning and Capacity Building, Economic]		Nov-15-2021

Apr-07-2021	Non-Governmental Organizations	Pew Charitable Trusts - "How States Can Direct Economic Development to Places & People in Need: Strategies to strengthen place-based programs, better support distressed areas"	Funding not identified. Allocated: $0	Through the lens of Fiscal & Economic Policy, this site explores strategies to strengthen place-based programs and better support distressed areas. Pew's analysis found that the criteria that states use to geographically target their programs are often ill-conceived or out-of-date, with the result that initiatives end up serving wealthy locations instead of disadvantaged ones. And even when programs do reach the intended communities, they often are not well-suited to help residents. Pew's research indicates that to begin solving these problems, states should: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Target programs using quantitative measures. To ensure that benefits accrue to communities in need, policymakers should use carefully selected objective measures of distress to determine eligible areas. • Systematically assess geographic targeting. States should regularly examine where businesses using programs are located in order to identify and correct instances in which wealthier areas unintentionally benefit. • Regularly update the set of eligible locations. Because local economic conditions change over time, policymakers should regularly review where programs are available to ensure that those places still need assistance. • Tailor economic development strategies to local needs. Financial incentives alone may be insufficient to encourage private investment in areas that lack trained workers or necessary infrastructure, so policymakers should address these prerequisites to growth. • Create job opportunities for low-income residents. Even programs that successfully encourage investment in distressed areas may not provide benefits to the local population, so states should embrace strategies—such as prioritizing industries that offer good jobs to people without college degrees—that can help direct economic gains to community members. Some states are demonstrating that progress is possible. For instance, in response to assessments that revealed flawed targeting, New Jersey and North Carolina changed their approaches to more effectively direct the benefits to the intended locations. Through similar reforms,	[Community Planning and Capacity Building, Economic]		Deadline not identified.

				Disaster Relief Services: While each disaster creates its own unique circumstances and special needs, Salvation Army disaster relief efforts focus on seven core services. These services may be modified based on the magnitude of the disaster and adapted to meet the specific needs of individual survivors. 1. Training: The first step in being ready to respond to an emergency is training. In partnership with other agencies, The Salvation Army's disaster training program offers a variety of courses designed to help individuals and communities prepare for emergency events and become trained disaster volunteers. 2. Food Service: When disaster strikes, one of the first signs that help is on the way is often the arrival of a Salvation Army mobile feeding unit, offering meals, snacks and drinks to rescue workers and survivors. 3. Emotional and Spiritual Care: Motivated by Christian faith, The Salvation Army deploys specially trained individuals to offer emotional and spiritual care to rescue workers and disaster survivors. 4. Emergency Communications: The Salvation Army Team Emergency Radio Network (SATERN) includes a worldwide network of volunteer amateur radio operators and other communications specialists, who may be mobilized to transmit emergency information during a disaster event. 5. Disaster Social Services: After a family has lost everything in a disaster, The Salvation Army is there to provide emergency assistance to help meet survivors' most urgent needs for food, clothing, shelter and medical services. 6. Donations Management: The Salvation Army is one of the nation's leaders in responsibly collecting, sorting and distributing donated goods. The Salvation Army encourages cash donations as the best and most flexible way to help and solicits only those in-kind donations which can be effectively received and efficiently distributed. 7. Disaster Recovery: The Salvation Army supports long-term disaster recovery operations with flexible programming that is adaptable to the unique needs of individual communities.

COVID-19 Disaster Resources Report

				Individuals with disabilities and people with access or functional needs - which includes older adults - may have unique needs related to communication, evacuation and sheltering - before, during, and after disasters - that require the use of limited specialized resources to address. To help mitigate those issues – personal and inclusive plans at all levels should be developed to help maintain the health, safety and independence of the whole community. Older adults and people with disabilities have unique and special needs to consider, however. The ACL Emergency Preparedness page offers best practices and resources that can help. The Administration for Community Living (ACL) website offers resources that can help older adults and people with disabilities learn how to prepare for emergencies. You can also find resources for families, caregivers, service providers, and communities. EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS FOR OLDER ADULTS AND PEOPLE WITH DISABILITIES Disasters, man-made or natural, can happen at anytime, anywhere, and vary in magnitude. Older adults and people with disabilities often have unique needs during a crisis. For example, approximately half of those over age 65 have two or more chronic health problems, such as heart disease, diabetes, or Alzheimer’s disease. These conditions increase a person’s vulnerability during periods of time without food, water, shelter, and adequate rest. People with disabilities may also have a wider variety of functional limitations, sometimes requiring more supports, many of which are often in short supply during a crisis event. It is critical that individuals, service providers, and communities actively engage in emergency planning. Each person has a responsibility to prepare for potential crisis and make a plan for how to respond. Providers of long-term services and supports must train staff in all emergency actions (evacuation, lock-down, shelter-in-place). Community leaders and first-responders must be prepared to support the health and safety needs of older adults and people with disabilities, engage these populations in the planning process, and—to the maximum extent possible—provide services and supports in integrated Functional Needs Support Shelters. The only way to ensure the well-being of older adults and people with disabilities during a crisis is through a “whole-community” approach to preparedness. AGING AND DISABILITY NETWORKS The aging and disability networks are made up of local, state, and national organizations and committed advocates working to support older adults and people with disabilities. Some organizations focus on a particular type of disability, age group, or type of service, whereas others have a more comprehensive mission.

COVID-19 Disaster Resources Report

				There are many similarities in the services and supports older adults and people with disabilities need in order to live independently. Increasingly, the aging and disability networks are working together at state and local levels, and ACL is frequently asked for help in forging these new collaborative relationships. Together, the communities have a larger voice and are more successful advocates than any of the networks on its own. At the same time, the networks retain the unique elements of their individual missions. PROGRAM AREAS There are issues that affect both people with disabilities and older adults, and we join forces to address them. However, there also are issues that affect only older adults, or only people with disabilities, and ACL continues to develop and manage programs and advocate for the individual populations, as well. The ACL manages a variety of programs (authorized by several statutes), providing assistance on health and wellness, protecting rights and preventing abuse, supporting consumer control, strengthening the networks of community-based organizations, funding research, and much more. ACL's programs include the following: ACL advocates across the federal government for older adults, people with disabilities, and families and caregivers; funds services and supports provided primarily by states and networks of community-based programs; and invests in training, education, research, and innovation. For assistance with service identification for older adults and their families in your area, please contact Eldercare Locator (800-677-1116), a public service of the U.S. Administration on Aging. https://eldercare.acl.gov/Public/Index.aspx DisasterAssistance.gov: https://www.disasterassistance.gov/get-assistance/forms-of-assistance/4505 ACL - Emergency Preparedness: https://acl.gov/emergencypreparedness ACL - Aging and Disability Networks: https://acl.gov/programs/aging-and-disability-networks ACL - Program Areas: https://acl.gov/programs Eldercare Locator: https://eldercare.acl.gov/Public/Index.aspx

				services and supports for older adults and people with disabilities. Grants and cooperative agreements are the major vehicles through which ACL transfers its appropriated funds to organizations providing, supporting, or researching community living. There are two basic types of ACL grants: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Discretionary, or "competitive," grants allow ACL to exercise discretion in selecting the projects to be funded and determining the amount of the award. Discretionary grants, once awarded, provide grantees with significant flexibility and control over how grant objectives are achieved (within the scope of the approved application). If the nature of the grant requires substantial ACL involvement, ACL will administer the grant as a cooperative agreement, which affords the agency a role in grant decision-making. • Mandatory, or "formula," grants are on-going programs, which require no application or competition. Eligibility and funding levels for mandatory grants are based on legislation which often uses a formula to determine the allocation of grant funds across eligible entities such as states. View the tables with mandatory grant awards. For questions about mandatory grants, see the programmatic and fiscal contacts list. Grantees and Organizations Seeking Grants ACL's goal is attract top-notch proposals from a wide range of applicants by providing clear, easy-to-find information about the application process and managing grants. This section of the website contains information on how to apply for a competitive grant, a list of open funding opportunities, and information on how to manage a grant once it has been awarded. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • How to Apply • Funding Opportunities • Grant Application Process • Application Tips • Managing a Grant ACL does not provide grants directly to individuals. Employers should adapt infection control strategies based on a thorough hazard assessment, using appropriate combinations of engineering and administrative controls, safe work practices, and personal protective equipment (PPE) to prevent worker exposures. Some OSHA standards that apply to preventing occupational exposure to SARS-CoV-2 also require employers to train workers on elements of infection prevention, including PPE. OSHA has developed this interim guidance to help prevent worker exposure to SARS-CoV-2. The general guidance below applies to all U.S. workers and employers. Vulnerability of the supply of an agricultural commodity to risks such as COVID-19 depend on the number of farmers and agricultural workers affected, the location of affected workers, the crops and animals that are grown in the most impacted regions, and the degree to which production is concentrated in a particular geographic region. By combining data on the number of COVID cases in each U.S. county with the county's total population, U.S. Department of Agriculture data on the number of farmers and hired farm workers in each county, and data on agricultural production of each county, and estimate of the share of agricultural production at risk can be computed. https://ag.purdue.edu/agecon/Pages/FoodandAgVulnerabilityIndex.aspx	[Economic, Natural and Cultural Resources]		Deadline not identified.
