Money Market Funds:

A fund sold by a firm recognized as a regulated investment company by the Internal Revenue Service may pass through to the shareholders tax exempt interest and dividends permitting the income to retain its original character. Statements received by shareholders indicate whether the income is exempt from federal tax.

Under a repurchase agreement, Money Market or Mutual Fund income does not retain its original character. In this case, the court has ruled that the fund, not the taxpayer, owns the bonds.

Nuveen Bonds:

Nuveen Bonds are municipal bonds from all over. Taxpayer statements should reflect the states involved. Income from bonds that originate in Maine is not taxable; income from bonds that originate outside Maine is taxable.
